

Russia May Work Double Veto On Berlin Issue

Bevin Blames Russia If War Follows Crisis

PARIS (AP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Britain, in a blistering attack on the Soviet Union, said today the Russians alone would be responsible for a new world war.

United Nations' General Assembly delegates cheered the Foreign Secretary at the close of Britain's major policy speech in one of the greatest demonstrations in U.N. history.

Bevin spoke to the Assembly as the three western powers turned their Berlin dispute with the Russians over to the Security Council.

Addressing Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky directly, Bevin warned that Britain would defend herself against any Russian attack.

INSINCERITY, EVASION

Bevin accused the Russians of insincerity, untruthfulness and evasion. He declared, "with all the solemnity at my disposal," that "if the black fury, the incalculable disaster of atomic war should fall upon us, all I can say is, that one power . . . will alone be responsible for the evils which may be visited upon mankind."

When he had finished talking, all except the Russian delegates and their satellites jumped to their feet to cheer and applaud the British delegate. Cries of "Bravo" and "Tres Bien" could be heard outside the assembly hall.

Vishinsky strode from the hall, his face set in a grim mask, immediately after Bevin had finished.

ON REGULAR BASIS

As he did in a speech before the British House of Commons last Wednesday, Bevin again referred gravely to the possibility of a third world war in this generation.

He added a new gloomy note in a hint that Britain already envisages the end of the United Nations unless the east-west conflict can be solved.

"If we cannot proceed on a world basis as we had hoped, we must proceed on a regional basis," he said.

No Decision On Arena Question; May Be Thursday

Ald. Waldo Skillings, civic arena committee chairman, said today following a meeting of the committee, no decision has been reached on finding funds and completing the rink.

"But," he stated, "we are holding a meeting next Thursday which will be attended by Mr. Hamilton (C. T. Hamilton, Vancouver consulting engineer in the project), and there may be something then."

The meeting will be held at the City Hall at 2 in the afternoon. Like all committee meetings, it will not be open to the public.

ESTIMATE AWAITED

Ald. Skillings said the arena problem was discussed at length during today's meeting, "but we cannot make a decision until Mr. Hamilton is here."

The engineer has been asked by the committee to make an estimate of how much money is needed to complete the arena and it is expected he will submit his estimate to the committee Thursday. He stated last week he expected to have it ready by the end of this week.

See page three for reply from J. W. Oosterink, city building inspector, to criticism leveled at him at last week's arena inquiry.

Revelation Of Threatening War Shocks British People

LONDON (CP)—Britain's hasty rearming against the possibility of war has left its citizens in a state of shock.

Or, in the words of The London Daily Mirror, calmly bewildered and apprehensively steady.

Most Rev. Cyril Garbett, Archbishop of York, summed it up in a speech in the House of Lords: "This country has had a great shock in the last few days because for the first time it was realized there is a possibility of war."

Some veterans of the 1939-45 fighting, reminded by Defence Minister A. V. Alexander that they were still subject to instant recall to service, said they were getting their uniforms cleaned and pressed.

The R.A.F. issued a call for 20,000 air defence volunteers for manning radar instruments and other devices for spotting planes and sighting anti-aircraft guns.

All the man-in-the-street war talk had been unemotional.

Now there is an unmistakable change in the atmosphere.

DEMANDS GROW

In less than two weeks, this country has been told that demobilization of the armed forces is to be slowed; the army, navy and air forces are to be strengthened with both men and material; production of weapons is to be greatly increased; civilian defences are to be brought to a state of instant readiness.

Hopes To Relax Import Bans On U.S. Vegetables

WASHINGTON (CP)—Finance Minister Douglas C. Abbott today told a press conference here he hopes to relax import restrictions on fresh vegetables in time to make tomatoes, lettuce and cabbage easily available to Canadians during the coming winter.

He said the rate of improvement in Canada's dollar balance justified such a hope.

Abbott said he could make no promises or forecasts on the removal of restrictions on imports of automobiles, textiles and the numerous other consumer items involved in the austerity program adopted last November.

TALKED WITH FIFTY

Here for the third annual conference of the governors of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank, Abbott conducted a half hour question-and-answer period with about 50 correspondents at conference headquarters.

Asked about Canada's ability to supply armaments, he said that if it became necessary Canada could do it. "We did it before and no doubt we could do it again. It might require some conversion of plants."

Ice Cream Prices To Take Jump Here

Victorians can expect to pay more for ice cream next month following an increase in the wholesale price Friday, Oct. 1.

The increase in the wholesale level has been set to help manufacturers offset recent rises in the cost of raw materials, it was learned today.

It is expected ice cream novelties, such as dixie cups and Revels, will be selling for six cents when the increase takes hold.

Ice cream cones may be six cents also or they may be smaller and continue to sell for five. This will depend on the reaction of retailers.

Ice cream bricks, which now sell at 26 cents, will probably sell for 30 cents under the new scale.

The increase to be felt by the consumer will only be a portion of the increased cost in the price of raw materials, a spokesman for the industry said. A good part of the increase in raw material will be borne by the manufacturers as are all overhead increases.

Last rites were held in Gustav Vasa Church in the presence of 90-year-old King Gustaf, foreign diplomats and representatives of the United Nations.

After the church service, 40 Boy Scouts drew the coffin on an open wagon to the cemetery. Throngs of silent, mourning Swedes watched.

Trade Mission From Britain Welcomed

Colin Martin, chairman of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, today welcomed the 11-man United Kingdom mission to Victoria, saying that he felt a great deal of good would result from their visit. See story Page 3.

BERLIN (AP)—The British-licensed German press service said today Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, the Russian commander in Germany, had been recalled to Moscow for consultation. There was no official confirmation.

PARIS (AP)—Russia may try to bar admission of the Berlin quarrel to the Security Council by using the double veto, a high eastern delegate to the United Nations said today.

The double veto is a device developed by Russia. She has used it three times in the Security Council—in the Spanish, Greek and Czechoslovak cases.

Here is the way it might work in the Berlin dispute: Russia could vote against admission of the issue to the Security Council's agenda and then argue that her negative vote was a veto.

If the other council members should challenge this, Russia would then use the veto again to override their challenge. Under the United Nations' charter, the veto does not apply to questions of procedure, but does apply if there is a difference among the big powers over whether a question is procedural.

Cold War Enters Explosive Stage; Next Move In Dark

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The complete collapse of secret talks with Russia over the Berlin crisis advanced the cold war to a new and highly explosive stage today.

United States authorities are frankly uncertain what may happen next.

Both President Truman and Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for the United States presidency in the Nov. 2 election, are being kept closely posted while the United States, Britain and France take their case against the Russian blockade of the German capital into the public arena of the United Nations Security Council.

The failure of the secret diplomacy which the western powers have been practicing in the hope of reaching a settlement with the Kremlin was revealed by the United States State Department Sunday midnight.

At that hour the department made public a 3,000-word note accusing Russia of bad faith in the Berlin negotiations and of creating "a threat to international peace."

Prolonged Struggle Foreseen

Published at the same time was a heretofore secret record of 24,000 words which top western diplomats said proves the Russians are bent upon using the "illegal" blockade to force the western powers out of the German capital.

Thus it appears that instead of an end to the blockade, which Prime Minister Stalin agreed to on Aug. 23, the world now is in for a further, prolonged east-west struggle over the city.

The difference is that from here on the issue will be before Paris with world public opinion as a stake.

Russia's continued membership in the U.N. is in grave doubt. New East-West clashes in Berlin are feared here.

The dangers of shooting incidents that could lead to open conflict are not ruled out by best-informed U.S. authorities.

These experts are more uncertain than ever as to how far the Russians will go in creating incidents aimed at making Berlin untenable for the western powers.

No Ferry Business For Washington

OLYMPIA, WASH. (AP)—The State Supreme Court today denied a request which would, in effect, have approved the state's plan to go into the ferry business.

The high court technically refused to order State Auditor Cliff Yelle to sign $10,500,000 in revenue bonds which were proposed to finance a State-owned ferry-bridge system on Puget Sound.

The State Toll Bridge authority had proposed that proceeds from the bond issue would go for purchase of the privately-owned ferry systems now operating on Puget Sound and construction of a bridge across Agate Pass.

Governor Wallgren said earlier that if the court did not approve the proposal, the State Toll Bridge authority would seek some other means of going into the ferry business.

Social Credit Chief To Oppose Pearson In Federal Contest

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—John J. Fitzgerald, president of the Social Credit League of Ontario, will oppose External Affairs Minister Pearson in the Oct. 25 federal by-election in Algoma East, Ont.

Mr. Fitzgerald, one-time secretary of the Montreal Board of Trade, is in the lumbering business here.

The nomination announcement assures an election battle for Mr. Pearson, member of the diplomatic service recently appointed to the External Affairs ministry. The seat was opened for him through the elevation of Thomas Farquhar, Liberal, to the Senate.

The C.C.F. executive will meet in Walford tonight to decide whether to enter a candidate.

Reign Of Terror In Albania As Split With Tito Fought

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—Resistance to the Albanian government's split with Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia has caused a reign of terror in Albania, according to press reports here.

The reports said Albanian authorities have issued orders for their militia to shoot on the spot anyone showing pro-Yugoslav sympathies.

The newspaper said many Albanians were fleeing into Yugoslavia, including army officers and militia men.

In addition to reports that seven members of the Albanian parliament were shot for defying Premier Col. Gen. Enver Hoxha's pro-Communist stand, Belgrade newspapers said 12 Yugoslav sympathizers were shot Sept. 12 in the village of Ljesh without investigation or trial.

MRS. KASENKINA TELLS ALL Installment 2

Chased Through Life By Soviet Terror

(In this, the second installment of Mrs. Kasenkina's Own Story, the school teacher whose desperate leap won her the opportunity to remain in America reveals the origins of her courageous decision. The long shadow of terror, pursuing her through the years to the window of the Russian consulate in New York, had its beginning when, as a young woman, she fell in love with and married a young Czarist officer.)

By
Oksana S. Kasenkina

(Edited by ISAAC DON LEVINE and Copyright, 1948, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THE FLOOD of events which led to my leap from the window of the Soviet consulate in New York had its origin in the days of my youth and in the fate of the man I fell in love with.

Back of my decision not to return to Soviet Russia was the vindictive manner in which my son, an only child, had been consigned to his death at the front by the Red Army.

Back of that cold-blooded act was the way my innocent husband had been sent to his doom in the great purge 11 years ago. Back of that killing, in turn, was his military service record in the first world war when he was my fiancé.

And forging this chain of hapless circumstances was the "great crime" I had committed in my effort to go abroad when I concealed from the Soviet authorities in Moscow how my husband had met his death in our home town in the Ukraine.

Before I recount the climax of my story, I must therefore go back to my beginnings on the pastoral steppes of the Donetz in the south of Russia.

I was one of seven sisters, and there were no boys in the family. My father, Stepan Burakov, was a master mechanic at the locomotive works near Kamenskaya, on the Southeastern Railroad running from Moscow to the Caucasus. He earned almost as much as an engineer. He would test foreign locomotives when they were shipped in from Germany or the United States. Although strictly non-political, my father was a member of the railway union.

We owned our own house and led a comfortable life. My mother did have to work hard taking care of the large family. Father wanted me to become a teacher, and I gave him my promise when I was still in pigtails.

The famous Donetz Basin, where I was born and raised, was then in its boom days. This part of the country boasted both great agricultural and mineral wealth, especially coal deposits. The villages had mushroomed into great beehives. Industrial settlements had sprung up everywhere almost overnight. Food was plentiful and cheap.

Whatever misery and poverty existed in the northern and western provinces of the vast empire, here, in the southeastern corner of Russia, want was unknown. Life was gay. There was toll, but there was also song. Thrifty peasants and skilled workers could afford to give their children not only a primary, but even a higher education.

Went To High School

My father sent me to Mazurenko's High School for Girls, a private school in which the tuition was 85 rubles (roughly 43 dollars) a year. Kamenskaya, then a prospering community, also had a public high school where the tuition was 20 rubles (10 dollars) less. But in the state school the girls wore brown uniforms, which I did not like. I preferred the green worn by Mazurenko's students.

I was a good scholar, and graduated in 1914 when I was under 18. I was proficient in German and poor in French. My special interest was botany. My father had a sister in the capital who was married to a Frenchman. His name was Arbeau (and he was a teacher of French). There were many such in Russia in those days. I remember the Arbeaus visiting us. Later they left Russia with their children and moved to France. For some time my father heard from his sister. Then we lost track of her.

Seven Provinces Appealing 21 Per Cent Freight Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—Appealing to the cabinet against last spring's 21 per cent railway freight rate increase, seven provincial governments today attacked the rate award as wrong in general principle and on many specific points.

In a joint submission, the provinces—all except Ontario and Quebec—asked the Governor-in-Council to throw out the award or send the whole case back to the Board of Transport Commissioners with orders to re-examine particular aspects of the case.

A third alternative proposal was that the cabinet itself revise the board's judgment to conform with certain contentions of the provinces. These revisions would have the effect of knocking out most of the $70,000,000-a-year increase.

Under this plan, there would be no provision for railway surpluses; rail earnings would be called on to bear only a proportion of corporate fixed charges and dividends instead of all, as at present, and sums taken from annual revenue for depreciation reserves would be sliced sharply.

Husband Was Marked Man

I was the third girl. My elder sister, Maria, was married to a well-to-do engineer, a certain Loshakov, and lived in Batum, on the Black Sea in the Caucasus. Her husband had soda works there. After the Soviet revolution, they fled to Turkey where Loshakov established himself in business in Ankara. For several years we heard from Maria, until news reached us of her death.

My Pretty Sister

My sister Eugenia, who is now in England, came after me. She was very pretty. At the age of 16 she went to Batum to visit Maria. There she met a British officer, Eugene Robertson, attached to the British military forces stationed in the Caucasus during World War I. He fell in love with Eugenia, married her, and took her to England.

She was very happy with him until his premature death from tuberculosis. But Eugenia became an Englishwoman. "I'll never leave England, for I love it," she wrote home. Although widowed and childless, she would not return to Russia except as a tourist, but the Soviet Embassy refused her a visitor's visa.

Some months after I graduated from high school, I obtained the post of a grade school teacher in a nearby village, not far from the flourishing city of Slaviansk which then had about 30,000 inhabitants. My salary ranged as high as 35 rubles (18 dollars) a month. It was in that village, during the first world war, that I met my future husband.

One of the respected members of the community was a peasant named Nikita Kasenkin. According to the classification later made by the Bolsheviks, Nikita was a serednyak—a farmer of the middle class. He had a son, Demyan, who was attending the Commercial Institute in Kiev, studying mathematics and railroad engineering.

Demyan was two and a half years older than I. His studies were interrupted when he was already a senior by a call to military service. He was drafted into the Czar's army. While at the front fighting the Germans, he had never attended a military school and had no idea of following a regular army career.

Demyan fell in love with me, during one of his trips home on leave, and I with him. I was proud of the distinction he had won in defence of the country.

But because Demyan had answered the call to duty and attained the rank of lieutenant in the Czarist service, he was a marked man the rest of his days. This cast a long shadow of terror over our lives. It struck down my husband in his prime, my fledgling son in his bloom, and pursued me to America in blind vengeance.

(Tomorrow: The revolution and Demyan's arrest. Life under the Reds. The Kasenkinas are advised to flee.)

GOERING'S OWN STORY . . . By WERNER BROSS

'Gestapo Spied Upon Me Day And Night'

Installment 7

(Werner Bross, German lawyer and one of Hermann Goering's defence counsel at the Nuremberg trial, had the unique opportunity of taking down at Goering's dictation what where virtually his last words—revelations, in many cases, of hitherto unknown events inside the Nazi Reich. Today he presents Goering's own account of his stormy relations with Adolf Hitler.)

IT WAS a surprise to the whole world when Hitler and his official heir, Hermann Goering, clashed in public conflict over the exercise of Germany's waning power at the end of the war in Europe. But as Goering dictated to me the story of his life in the interview room of the Nuremberg prison, I was able to see this dramatic ending of a quarter century of political collaboration as the logical sequence to a relationship between two men who had been drifting apart for years. The gap between them had been hidden from public view, but it was always there. Goering's greatest asset with Hitler was the length of time he had been associated with him in the Nazi movement.

"The Fuehrer always supported the 'old fighters' of the movement," Goering told me. "You could charge one of them with any crime, bring him the most indisputable proof—but it wouldn't get you anywhere." (Note—This was hardly consistent with the case of Roehm, or of others mentioned later in this article.)

Goering himself was one of the oldest of the old fighters. He had joined the Nazi Party in 1922 and took charge of the SA in Bavaria in January of the following year. He was involved with Hitler in the unsuccessful Munich putsch of Nov. 1923, which forced Goering to flee to Italy and put Hitler in the jail where he wrote "Mein Kampf."

Just before Hitler ran for President of Germany against von Hindenburg, Goering arranged for him to be appointed an official of the Brunswick government, thus becoming a Brunswick citizen and consequently a German citizen—for up to this time Hitler, a native of Austria, did not even possess the nationality of the government we wanted to head. After Hitler became Chancellor, Goering undertook the task of organizing the state to make it safe for National Socialism.

Formed Gestapo

"MY TASK," he dictated to me, "was to introduce the taking over of power in a completely legal fashion. My activities in Prussia covered the Gestapo, the concentration camps, and the repression of the Roehm revolt. The Prussian Ministry of the Interior, which I took over, had been a key position of the Social Democrats. Its machinery had to be completely reconstructed, especially the political police, which in its essence was nothing but the later Gestapo of the National Socialists—that is, it was designed expressly to combat political opponents. I gave the name Gestapo—Secret State Police—to this organization to indicate unmistakably that its concern was solely with the security of the state."

Thus Goering's early services to Hitler were great and his nomination as political heir to Hitler, to succeed him in case anything should happen to the Fuehrer, was justified by his record. Yet when General Blomberg suggested to Hitler in the spring of 1938 that he make Goering his successor, Hitler turned down the idea with the comment that Goering was too lazy.

When Hitler finally did make Goering his political heir, he did so in a fashion which did not strike Goering as showing the confidence the nomination would seem to apply. He didn't inform Goering in advance, and the Reich Marshal learned the news, like the public, only when Hitler announced it in a speech. Hitler told no one any more than he had to.

"Even as Hitler's deputy," Goering told me, "I often knew nothing about his plans and intentions. With other ministers, this situation was often much worse. Most of them learned about the march into the Rhineland, the attack on Norway, the invasion of Holland and other important events, to their great surprise, when they heard the news on the radio or read it in the papers.

The Fuehrer's order that the people must not be told anything more about any measure than was necessary for its execution, and then not before the date when preparation for it had to begin, was well known. A copy of it hung in every government office and military establishment. It applied to the cabinet ministers as well as to everybody else."

The truth probably was that Hitler actually trusted nobody, not even his "old fighters," Goering remarked to me once. "It was a peculiarity of the Fuehrer's to pit the ambitions and ideas of his different collaborators against each other and to maintain a balance of power."

In other words, he sided with none of them. All were on perpetual parole. None of them were able to approach Hitler as a trusted and influential counselor, but only as a suppliant and inferior prepared to submit to rebuff.

All were subject to loss of favor, which had to be divined from such subtle signs as Hitler's failure to make his customary gestures of formal politeness. For instance, more than one of his former aides left Germany when the Fuehrer failed to remember his birthday.

Goering represented himself, however, as taking a very bold tone with the Fuehrer. When Hitler proposed calling back into the service, old officers who had been pensioned off, even using generals as privates if they were no longer capable of functioning in their former capacities, Goering told me he protested violently. Hitler tried to calm him by assuring him that the demoted generals would still draw the pay of their former rank.

"That made me angry," Goering told me. "I said to the Fuehrer, 'If I were in the place of these officers, I would throw the money at your feet!'"

But others pictured Goering as less brave in Hitler's presence. Count von Weizsaecker, (Secretary of the German Foreign Ministry) told me, "It is true that before his discussions with Hitler, Goering always blew himself up like a frog, but during them he always collapsed completely and came out with his tail between his legs."

This did not sound too different from Goering's sworn revelations to me.

"After 1942," he said, "my relations with Hitler had deteriorated so much and our differences of opinion had become so great that I was greatly depressed after our conferences on the general situation, which usually occurred between four and eight p.m. Often I couldn't eat before midnight, for fear of throwing everything up in my nervousness. When I came home, I had to sit in an armchair for several hours to calm down."

Hitler Was A Volcano

"I ALWAYS avoided living at Supreme Headquarters and I pitied Keitel and Jodl, who had to stand that human volcano, Hitler, with all his eruptions, twice a day. I couldn't have endured it. Even when I managed to wring definite orders out of him during the conferences, very often a telegram would arrive a few hours later, telling me that everything was changed, the Fuehrer had decided otherwise. I had to adapt myself to that."

The usual signs of waning influence showed Goering how his stock was dropping. In 1944 he had a bad attack of tonsillitis, which kept him in bed for several weeks, and nearly developed fatal complications. "No inquiry about my health came from the Fuehrer and when I reported to him at last my recovery, he said not one word about my illness. Then I knew where I stood."

"Yet you still remained his successor?" I said. "I discovered later that he refrained from divesting me of this position only because of my personal authority with the German people. He felt no one could gather them together as I could if anything happened to himself. I was told that during a 1943 conference Hitler actually said this in so many words. So it wasn't his confidence in me that left me in that position; it was solely a matter of political considerations."

Thus it was not surprising that during the last years of the war Goering, like all the other Nazi leaders, for that matter, was closely spied upon, ironically enough, by the very Gestapo which he had organized.

Watched By Himmler

"ALWAYS and everywhere I was surrounded by the Gestapo," he said. "There was no occasion, day or night, on which I was not accompanied by a Gestapo guard. Originally, of course, they were there to insure my safety. But from early 1943 onward, I began to realize fully that Himmler was using them to keep tabs on me and particularly on my relatives and associates. Unfortunately through this channel and the foreign organization of the Security Service, personal information about me, of the most intimate kind, was permitted to fall into foreign hands."

"I realize today that attacks on me in the foreign press and my declining popularity among the German people were the deliberate achievements of Himmler, who never liked me and who was inspired by unlimited ambition."

(Note—Most foreign observers considered these stories deliberate Nazi propaganda intended to build up Goering as a jovial, hearty fellow, the sort of character whom Sir Neville Henderson, last British Ambassador to Berlin, called "an old pirate with some attractive qualities." That Goering resented the stories comes as a revelation.)

"At Karin Hall," Goering continued, "this spying led to grotesque situations. All night, the SS men in the house poked about in the attics and the cellars and naturally they slipped many a fine bottle of wine into their pockets. One night I felt hungry and went down to the kitchen to get myself a sandwich. Suddenly I felt that someone was watching me and turned around. There was one of those fellows behind me, staring at me."

"But the limit was what happened another evening. I had been in my wife's apartment with her. When I left to cross over to my own rooms, in the other wing, there was an SS man posted in the corridor. That was too much! I told the officer in charge that he could post SS men on the stairs leading to each wing if he wanted but I wasn't going to tolerate spying on my visits to my wife!"

Long Nova Scotia Drought Ends As Dry Laws Relaxed

HALIFAX (CP) — A happy Haligonian slapped his foaming mug on a tavern table and ordered another beer today for the first time in 31 years.

Beer is on tap at Halifax once again after the long, long dry spell—of prohibition and government control. Sharp at 10 a.m. the swinging doors swung at the Sea Horse—first "pub" to open under Nova Scotia's new liquor regulations.

Wine also was on sale, but there was little call for it as dockworkers and clerks drank with obvious enjoyment and stretched their legs still farther under the polished birch tables. Despite protests, women are not allowed in the pubs under the new liquor regulations. The regulations also forbid open sale of whisky, rum and all spirits, which still must be purchased at government stores.

The weaker sex, however, is included in the beer-and-wine-with-meals arrangement now in force at most Halifax hotels.

Relaxing of this city's liquor regulations came by a citizens' two-to-one vote in a plebiscite sponsored by the provincial government.

The Nova Scotia Legislature moved for local municipal option on the matter after more than two years of province-wide controversy.

Twelve communities now have voted for open sale, but Halifax is the first place to open tavern doors. Halifax hotels began serving beer and wine with meals several weeks ago.

Time To Tell Role Of Canada As Source Of European Aid

WASHINGTON (CP) — Time and circumstances of trade and balances hold the answer to questions on Canada's future role as a source of aid to the United Kingdom and other needy European countries, Finance Minister Abbott of Canada said on his arrival here Sunday.

"We have always said we would do what was economically possible," he told reporters, "but everybody knows the difficulties we have experienced ourselves from dollar shortage."

He would not comment on persistent reports here that the Canadian government would begin releasing part of the $240,000,000 unused portion of credits advanced to Britain and frozen when Canada's own dollar shortage became acute.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, who flew in from Ottawa with Mr. Abbott after a week's conversations there with Canadian government officials, was equally noncommittal.

The two finance ministers officially are here for the third annual conference of the board of governors of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

Concrete work in construction of the Memorial Arena is costing $95,000 more than Charles T. Hamilton, Vancouver consulting engineer in the project, estimated.

J. W. Oosterink, city building inspector, who has been supervising arena construction since the beginning of the year, made this claim today in a written statement which the arena committee will consider at a meeting next Thursday.

He said Mr. Hamilton's estimate of $27 for labor and materials in the pouring of a cubic yard of concrete, is short the actual cost by $25.

And he gave a detailed account on how he arrives at $52 as the cost of pouring a yard of concrete. In this he points out that the bulk of the concrete work is in three and four-inch layers, and to spread a cubic yard it takes an area of about 10 square yards.

Mr. Oosterink said it takes two carpenters at least one day which costs $23; 125 square feet of lumber, costing $8; steel and labor costing $7; the actual concrete $9; pouring the concrete, tamping it and finishing, $5.00.

Mr. Hamilton estimated 3,800 cubic yards of concrete were necessary, Mr. Oosterink stated. That figure multiplied by the $25 difference between actual cost and the estimate makes $95,000.

OTHER THINGS

"There are several other things not allowed for in Mr. Hamilton's estimate," the building inspector continued. "They include excavating for footings, certain holes 18 feet deep."

Mr. Oosterink added: "The whole of the ice area had to be excavated eight inches lower at a cost of $800. A lot of blasting had to be done. There was no opening into the boiler-room large enough to bring in the boiler, so an opening had to be cut through the wall. Most bleacher walls were 14 inches too high for vision line with fence. These were built lower and iron railings are being put on."

"This will give you some idea what I have been up against," the inspector told the council.

CRITICIZES HAMILTON

Mr. Oosterink then launched a barrage of criticism against Mr. Hamilton, mainly over the consulting engineer's statement at last week's arena inquiry that his $27 estimate on pouring a cubic yard of concrete was given him by a prominent contractor in Vancouver.

"Why couldn't he figure it out for himself?" asked Mr. Oosterink. "I have given you an example in this brief. It is the only practical way to arrive at cost, not go by what other people tell you."

"Mr. Hamilton compared cost of labor in percentages with other jobs. We all know that this is the first arena of its kind built in Canada. Therefore we have no fair comparison."

"I have looked after plenty of reinforced concrete work, but never one with so much intricate form work as this job. Therefore the cost of labor is bound to be high, when he includes in that the cost of excavating, blasting and other items.

"Laborers' wages increased 20 per cent this summer, also."

DEFENDS FOREMAN

Mr. Oosterink then went to the defence of his foreman on the arena project, Dick Hill, whom Mr. Hamilton stated in effect, was not big enough for the job, in his opinion.

"Mr. Hamilton stated that he asked me to fire Mr. Hill. This is not true," Mr. Oosterink said. "Even if he had I would not have done so. I understand that the following morning after the investigation, Mr. Hamilton apologized to Mr. Hill for saying what he did, and promised Mr. Hill he would give it to him in writing if he wanted it."

"Whenever Mr. Hill leaves this job, whether it is before or after the job is completed, I am willing to give him 100 per cent reference as to ability and character."

UNION PRESIDENT

"When Mr. Hill was chosen as foreman for the arena job, I pointed out to Mr. Skillings (Ald. Waldo Skillings, arena committee chairman) that Mr. Hill was president of the local carpenter's union which I pointed out might be good for us or bad for us. Should he turn out to be no good, it would be hard for us to get rid of him. If he was okay, it may help us in getting better carpenters. Mr. Hill turned out to be okay and we had no labor troubles."

The building inspector concluded: "Regarding the cost of materials, if it is figured by percentage, it should be taken into consideration that I bought a lot of the lumber at two-thirds of actual cost."

Berlin Break Makes Canada Reconsider Aid In Airlift

OTTAWA (CP)—Breakdown of Western Russian negotiations over Berlin means reconsideration of Canada's stand against participation in the Berlin airlift, a government source said today.

There was speculation in informed quarters that Canada will shortly follow other dominions in announcing she will send transport planes or air crews, or both, to take part in the three-month-old aerial effort to buck the Soviet land blockade.

A government source said last Thursday the question of whether Canada's entry would be reconsidered depended on the outcome of the Berlin negotiations. They were broken off Sunday and the western powers sent the Berlin issue direct to the United Nations.

Up to now Canada has felt she had no voice in German policy generally and she had no particular desire to stick her forces into a situation that could quite easily explode into war.

Berliners Believe Western Allies To Maintain Stand

BERLIN (AP)—The western powers will stand firm in Berlin against the Russians, foreign and German political circles here predict.

Britain and the United States are expected to throw a mighty effort into the western air shuttle to keep the Russian-blockaded city supplied with food, fuel and other necessities.

The firm stand and the airlift, these circles say, will be the Western Allies' answer to the question, "What is in the cards for Berlin?" now that the four-power talks have broken down.

That question is not for the big power Foreign Ministers alone. Before a final solution to the Berlin crisis is found, it will hit the pocketbooks of the citizens of Britain, the United States and France, at least. At most it can lead to the deadliest world war in history.

Ordinary diplomacy has failed.

Top level diplomacy has failed. Now the United Nations will have a try at it. No one here expects the United Nations can solve it. In fact, it is possible it may wreck the United Nations.

CAUSED HESITANCY

What comes if the United Nations fails? It is this question, authoritative sources say, which led to some hesitancy on the part of Britain and France to take the German problem to the United Nations.

The answer as seen here is a firm stand in Berlin and continuation and strengthening of the airlift.

This will be a long and costly process. It means supplying 2,000,000 persons by air indefinitely. The drain on western taxpayers will be heavy. Some fliers' lives will be lost, in addition to the 14 Britons and Americans already killed flying the air supply run.

Halifax Tugs Try To Salvage Vessel Worth $1,000,000

HALIFAX (CP)—Two Halifax tugs, the Foundation Lillian and Foundation Josephine, found $1,000,000 worth of salvage 900 miles southeast of here today and they were standing by the abandoned British freighter trying to get her to Bermuda.

Seven men were lost overboard and 39 men saved by rescue ships when the Leicester was caught in the Sept. 16 hurricane. The ship is worth $1,000,000 in salvage and the Halifax tugs began their search after a French ship reported she was still afloat.

The tugs reported today the Leicester was "wallowing and listing badly" but it was indicated an attempt would be made to tow her to Bermuda to take advantage of prevailing winds and currents.

Three Die, Two Hurt In Lachute Mishap

LACHUTE, Que. (AP)—Three persons were killed and two others severely injured Saturday night, result of an automobile-truck crash near this town 40 miles northwest of Montreal.

Killed were Albert Laurin, 27, his 25-year-old brother, Sylvio and Roger Jette, 23, all of nearby Ste. Scholastique. The injured, in hospital here, are Edmond and Real Laurin, 21 and 22, respectively. They are suffering from fractured skulls.

Civic Funeral Given Two Slain Policemen

MONTREAL (CP)—The City of Montreal today paid final tribute to two policemen, Constables Paul Emile Duranseau and Nelson Paquin, slain in a gun battle with bank bandits last Thursday. The bodies, which had been lying in state in the concourse of a city hall building on Champ de Mars, were borne in caskets draped with the Red Ensign on fire trucks to Notre Dame Church for requiem mass.

Head Of Mission Impressed With Market Prospects Here

Harry Gilpin, prominent British industrialist who is touring Canada as head of an 11-man United Engineering mission, said here today the party was very impressed with the possibilities of the Canadian market.

Purpose of the mission is twofold. First part of the job which began on this continent late in August and which will end in October when the party sails for Britain, is to survey the Canadian market to determine what British made capital goods can be sold here. The second phase of the mission is to impress on British manufacturers of capital goods how to develop the Canadian market.

The project is all part of Britain's drive to overcome her plight resulting from the dollar shortage.

WITH MATERIALS AND MACHINERY

With trade now on a bi-lateral basis, it is necessary for Britain to increase sales to countries which are supplying her with food and raw materials. Britain, he said, hoped to pay Canada for wheat and other foods and raw materials with machinery. British manufacturers of capital goods have been instructed, he said, to put Canadian orders at the top of their priority lists, even above orders from traditional markets.

The project, Mr. Gilpin admitted, was not simple. Britain is 3,000 miles or more from the Canadian markets. United States, the traditional supplier of capital goods, was 100 miles away.

Increasing Canadian purchases of British-made machinery would be to the advantage of both Canada and the United Kingdom, said Mr. Gilpin. If Canada will buy more British-made machinery Britain will be able to buy more B.C. lumber and apples and Saskatchewan wheat.

The mission met Vancouver Island manufacturers at the Empress Hotel this morning and this afternoon attended a luncheon with officials of the provincial government and others.

Members of the mission include representatives of some of Britain's largest machinery making houses.

Mr. Gilpin is representing Baker Perkins Ltd., and the British Food Machinery Manufacturers' Association. He described his firm, which on 17 previous occasions has sent him to this continent, as the world's largest manufacturer of food processing machinery.

Others on the mission are: E. Bruce Ball, managing direc-

MEETING IN PARIS

A MEASURE OF THE UNCERTAIN times in which we live may be seen in the fact that even while the world peace organization, the United Nations, meets in Paris, that city today is also the scene of a conference among the five member nations of the Western European Alliance to discuss consolidation of their defence programs. The increasing tension brought about by Russian intransigence and bulldozing tactics in international affairs has created that situation. It is an attempt to achieve security in the face of fear, and nothing the Soviet has said or done lately has helped in any way to lessen that fear. The atmosphere is not conducive to disarmament. If Russia "throws her weight around," as she has since the end of the war in spite of our armed defences, what would she do if the western nations were weak and unarmed? It needs little understanding of the forces that now divide the world to provide an answer.

The Deputy Foreign Minister of Russia, Mr. Andrei Vishinsky, on Saturday called for a one-third reduction of armaments by the five major world powers. Disarmament is not a new proposal in United Nations circles. It was debated for months at earlier meetings of the global body. And dogged Soviet adherence to a fixed and unchanging point of view, despite agreement among most of the other nations of the world, resulted in stalemate. There is little to indicate that the latest proposal would not suffer a similar fate. But it will have served the Russians' purpose if it makes big headlines and provides a further position from which the U.S.S.R. may issue diatribes, for the consumption of Communists and their followers, against the democracies for rejecting Soviet "peace attempts." As Mr. Warren Austin, of the United States U.N. delegation, said of the Vishinsky speech, "It's the same old stuff. He came with his speech all written out and just touched it up after hearing the dignified form of Gen. Marshall's remarks. To which Foreign Minister Schuman of France added, 'The speech does not ease the tension, but we all hope that this tension will not be heightened by Vishinsky's words.' The Russian representative had, as usual, interspersed his comments with violent denunciations of the western democracies in the guise of 'expansionists and other reactionary elements.'

History may record that one of the greatest political blunders of all time was caused by the Soviet Union's failure to encourage a continuance of the great friendship and admiration that the rest of the world held for that country at the close of the Second World War. In the intervening years those feelings have been replaced by distrust and suspicion, as a result of the blunt, steamroller tactics that have been adopted by the Kremlin. What can be thought of the mentality of the leaders of a great nation who would stage anti-aircraft firing practice in the narrow corridor over which the transport planes of a former ally are carrying food and fuel to a blockaded city; or, indeed, how can one assess men who would attempt to starve a population of 2,000,000 in the former Reich capital in order to force the West to agree to Russian demands? These are tactics in the face of which Russian appeals for disarmament warrant a cynical reception, and security alliances will hasten to forge strong bonds.

CHILDREN AND MATCHES

ONE OF THE DIFFICULTIES OF teaching children not to play with matches arises from the fact that no sooner has the lesson been brought home to one generation, than another comes along and must be given similar instruction. That point is emphasized by the warning issued by Fire Chief Robert Brindle the other day. By actual incidents he was able to prove that matches in irresponsible childish hands had been the cause of recent fires.

The admonition of the chief may be unnecessary for many parents. The message is, however, one which must be taken to heart by every father and mother. The danger of fires inadvertently started by youngsters exists everywhere. In Victoria the hazard is particularly great, since conditions of overcrowding in old and inflammable houses has not yet been relieved to a point where the menace has been reduced to any appreciable extent.

REALISM, NOT HYSTERIA

IN ANY ANALYSIS OF THE TROUBLED mental state of the people of this planet, the opinion of Viscount Samuel, president of the British Royal Institute of Philosophy, should carry some weight. "This age," says the distinguished Briton, "has been passing through a mood of pessimism because man has felt lonely and friendless in a harsh universe. Philosophy and religion, failing to provide leadership while science provides the facts, have left him confused and uncertain."

The soundness of that thesis is indicated, among other things, by the decision of the General Council of the United Church in Canada, which, meeting in Vancouver last week, endorsed a program to combat the world's current mood of "war hysteria or blind hatred." The religious body's proposal does not suggest adherence to the former fallacious principle of "peace at any price" which piled the tinder, through appeasement, for the holocaust following the days of Munich. It does, however, call for a sane weighing of conditions as they exist and a recognition that if war is to be averted in the near future more attention will have to be paid to concrete programs which have as their objective greater stability in international relations and better understandings between peoples. All appreciate the fact that such goals cannot be achieved unless they are made the targets of those nations which are capable of participating in war.

The automatic question arising from such a proposition, of course, asks how that desired condition can be created. A workable solution to the problem is suggested by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower:

"It is as important to prevent another war as to make certain of victory should one come. Luckily the means to both ends are the same. That is, we must make ourselves strong."

One of the means of achieving strength, we submit, is envisaged in the purpose of the United Church's campaign against "war hysteria." A people's energies are not channelled to most effective purpose by the dissipating influences of violent and unreasoned emotionalism. Nor is judgment served by the unbalance of pervading fear. The cause of peace can best be served by an appraisal of the cold facts. War, as Canada's Defence Minister Brooke Claxton said, is not inevitable; neither is peace certain. Under such conditions, national preparedness is essential. But neither hysteria nor blind hatred should be allowed to fan the people's will into that state of combustion from which a fateful explosion is inevitable.

In the prevailing atmosphere of pessimism noted by Viscount Samuel sound judgment is not the most easily attained national state of mind. But while preparations for the possible eventuality of war appear necessary, and firmness must be shown in the face of unending provocations from Moscow, hysteria cannot be allowed to become a determining influence in the course set for the nations of the world.

PUTTING ON THE CLAMPS

CZECHOSLOVAKIANS ARE NOW LIVING under a new law whereby it is a crime to operate "an unauthorized news service" or to spread alarming reports, while crimes "in aggravated circumstances" against the state will result in imposition of the death penalty. We in this country, reading such an announcement as applied to the European nation that has come under Moscow domination, cannot fully realize its implications unless we try to imagine the same edicts being put into effect here. We have become so accustomed to hearing about prohibitions and restrictions in the satellite countries that their impact tends to be lost. It is only when we transpose such a law to our own environment that we can realize the long downward path the formerly free Czechs have trod since Communists took over control of their land.

One may well imagine the outcry that would be raised throughout the length and breadth of Canada if such an order were announced. The disgust of most Canadians with the infamous Quebec "padlock" law is a case in point. But even that backward legislation does not go as far as the new Czech decree. Under the latter, it would become a "crime" to start up a weekly newspaper or any informational publication without direct government authorization! What a power that would be to put in the hands of any government! Canadians had a better system—the democratic way. When the Communist weekly paper published in Toronto attempted to become a daily, there was no official pressure. The public merely refrained from buying it. It lasted less than a year.

There can be little argument in favor of spreading "alarming" news, a practice which now has come under the Czech government ban. But to place an official prohibition on it at once raises the question of interpretation of the term. "Alarming" could be, and no doubt will be, construed as anything which the government does not want the people to hear. And that opens up a whole train of evils inherent in dictatorship.

No totalitarian state can long survive, no matter how well-intentioned it might be at the start, without invoking such restrictive legislation. For totalitarianism cannot endure free criticism or opposition. Compulsion is inherent in its philosophy. It cannot live without employing force.

AN INSIDE JOB

THE OLD ADAGE OF "SET A THIEF TO catch a thief" does not always work out, for so much depends on the permanency of the reformation of the ex-criminal appointee. It is true that one who knows the esoteric mysteries of thievery should be well equipped, on technical grounds, to outwit and outplan his former fellow-professionals, and thus cause their downfall. But the anti-social tendency that first prompted the thief-catcher to take up a life of crime may cause him to succumb too easily to the golden opportunities for personal gain presented by his new and reformed occupation.

The principle is on equally doubtful ground when the representative of the law is weak in morals, but has not heretofore yielded to temptation. For in this case you have set a potential thief to catch a thief, but you do not know you have done so. Such situations lead to news items like the Shanghai dispatch which told of the fate of Col. Chang Ya-ming. A former head of the Shanghai economic section in the government's financial reform program, he had been assigned to track down black market operators. This week he was executed, having been found guilty of black

Capitol Lion Hunt

By DOUGLAS LARSEN from Washington
A REALLY SIGNIFICANT straw-in-the wind has just been revealed. It has discouraged the Democrats about as much as anything that has happened since Mrs. Perle Mesta became known as "Two-Party Perle" by starting to entertain the Republicans.

The special board in charge of the publication, "The Social List of Washington," is preparing to put out a supplement in November, after the election. The significance of this is obvious. It means that the brainy members of this board believe that the Republicans stand a pretty good chance of winning. Their record on predictions is pretty good. Two years ago they made plans for a supplement, anticipating the Republican landslide in Congress.

WHEN THERE'S a political upheaval in the country the sensitive tenor of Washington social life is immediately affected. Women who may have been social lions yesterday suddenly become cocktail party castoffs when the ungrateful voters fail to re-elect their husbands.

After the G.O.P. captured Congress two years ago the supplement to The Social List of Washington, called the Green Book, included about 500 deletions and additions.

MISS CAROLYN HAGNER SHAW, the woman who supervises the printing of the Green Book, with the advice and consent of the board, estimates that if the Republicans do win, the supplement will have to carry close to 3,000 changes. There are about 5,000 names in it in all. Miss Shaw is already pretty distressed about the number of changes which have to be made in the regular issue about to come off the press. She says:

"It's just dreadful what death and divorces have done to Washington social life. And the way the unfortunate military people here have been transferred out of town is shocking. Nobody'll know anybody else at parties this fall, I'm sure."

IN NEW YORK and other large cities, it's usually family background which determines a place in the social register. In Washington, according to Miss Shaw, that's important, too, but she admits frankly that official rank is the deciding factor. A change in administration therefore would remove approximately 2,000 persons automatically from the Green Book. The other 1,000 likely to be affected are the relatives of the officials who would lose their standing.

SHREWD POLITICAL observers are going to watch carefully the entertaining which Mrs. Perle Mesta does during the fall season. She's the town's top hostess. Mrs. Mesta has always shown an uncanny ability to honor persons whose political prominence is on the upgrade. Soon after Harry Truman was elected vice-president she began tossing elaborate affairs for him and his family. Later that gave her a key to the White House front door.

She got the title of Two-Party Perle when she suddenly switched her inexhaustible party budget last year in behalf of certain prominent Republicans. An elaborate whine-ding for Speaker Joe Martin was the first. If she starts to give the cold shoulder to the Democrats this fall, they might as well throw in the towel, the experts believe.

IT HAS BEEN SO LONG since a Republican-dominated social season has existed in Washington even the memories of the old-timers are a little fuzzy about what to expect in case one comes. Generally, in the past, under G.O.P. administrations, the social whirl has been fairly conservative. That, however, was before that magic medium of meale, the cocktail party, was discovered. Big formal dinners were the favorite indoor sport and the guests stuffed so much on the fine food, the alcohol intake was limited. Bicarbonate of soda was the next-day remedy instead of bromo seltzer.

IF MRS. MESTA'S SHIFT in political affection, however, doesn't find her at the top of the social heap, there is interesting speculation on who might take her crown. Again, if the Republicans win, it's possible that Alice Roosevelt Longworth might once more become queen of the city. She crawled into an exclusive social clique when her cousin Franklin Roosevelt first took permanent residence in the White House. Another candidate is Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, widow of a socialite congressman from Long Island.

Whatever happens the experts predict that the season will produce its usual quota of good clean fun.

Quoting

The menace of a third world war rolls toward us with every act of Russian imperialist aggression and Communist violence and intrigue.—Winston Churchill.

The United States will do everything possible by negotiations to avoid the tragedy of war in the Berlin crisis, but we will not be coerced or intimidated in any way.—Secretary of State Marshall.

Discrimination is one of the things which is undermining the morale of the United States. . . . It is more of a threat to democracy than Communism.—K. V. Rajan, secretary of the National Missionary Society of India.

The whisper propaganda about a coming war must be halted. What government in what country in the world today is capable of leading its people into an aggressive war?—President Klement Gottwald of Czechoslovakia.

That's Why He's Going To Be Hard To Oust

Talking Through The Hat

By JOSEPH LISTER RUTLEDGE

ONE sometimes wonders whether any citizen is quite as simple-minded as some politicians believe him to be. Of course, the politicians may be right. They have some evidence on their side, witness the amazing absurdities that John Public seems ready to swallow, provided they are presented under the proper auspices.

MONOPOLIES?

Picking an instance at random, there is the statement of Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan. He told the CCF convention at Winnipeg: "When we don't like the prices we have to pay for gasoline or cigarettes or farm machinery there is nothing we can do about it. These commodities are sold by monopolies which have complete control of the prices they charge."

ANOTHER THING

There's another thing he must have known he could do too. He could agitate to have the government remove or lower the taxes on the product. Twenty-one cents out of the 35 cents paid for a packet of cigarettes is tax. Would these monopolies have permitted that if it could have been avoided? Or could they retain that price if taxes were dropped?

So it goes with gasoline and farm machinery. We could reduce them all if we didn't demand so many social benefits that cost money that is part of the price of cigarettes and gasoline and farm machinery.

But the main point that Premier Douglas did not mention was that by switching the brand he uses John Public can also do something about prices. Of course that isn't an argument that would sound well on a platform more or less dedicated to getting rid of competition.

COMMONSENSE

But these are methods that work and in his sane moments, John Public knows it. It is only when he lets himself become bemused with a theory that he forgets the very simple replies that his commonsense would provide for him.

Science Cannot Be Chained

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"EVERY evil has within itself the seed of its own destruction."

That is a truth and a natural law to be remembered with gratitude, for it may yet save our civilization from ruin. If we are wise enough to let nature take its course instead of doing foolish things to preserve the evil while trying to destroy it.

IMITATION

No doubt you read about the swift Jap planes that appeared in the distance and did apparently foolish acrobatic stunts, but flew away to avoid combat. When the war was over, we learned that the stunts were signals. The Japs "had radar," but didn't know how to make it work. Every modern thing they used in the war was an imitation of some American or European invention.

The Russians were equally handicapped by lack of knowledge. Russian engineers, spurred by patriotism, did some things remarkably well. Their big tank has no equal. Some of their planes were good, but they had nothing to compare with the enormously complicated and almost miraculously efficient B-29, until three of them were forced to land in Russian territory. These were kept and copied, with the help of German technicians, and imitations now number scores.

HANDICAPPED

Now that the safety of all great nations depends upon their scientists, the Russians are handicapped by the fundamental weakness of their system—its complete disregard of the individual.

The master politicians have already destroyed the inspiration of artists, writers and musicians by requiring them to produce stuff that is politically satisfactory, regardless of its artistic merit; and now they are trying to make science adjust itself to politics.

Scientists of world-wide fame have been deprived of freedom and reduced to the rank of stooges. A quack who knows nothing of science, except the art of flattering politicians, is now their master, with power to reject their ideas or tell them what ideas to have.

SAME TRUTH

Stalin learned in time that military officers couldn't do their best while a political agent stood at each man's elbow to approve or disapprove his decisions. Let us hope he will not learn in time that the same truth applies to scientists.

A dictator may murder a million men, but he hasn't enough power to control one man's ideas or force one man to conceive and perfect a new kind of bomb.

The Kremlin; House Of Mystery

By W. N. EWER, in London Calling

I SUPPOSE I have been asked a dozen times: "What is the Kremlin? Is it a fortress? Or a palace? Or what?"

Well, that is a very difficult question to answer. Because what we call the Kremlin is all these, and a lot more besides. It is one of the most extraordinary collections of buildings anywhere in the world. I know of nothing that is anything like it.

FOUR CATHEDRALS

There are four cathedrals—square Russian cathedrals, with their clusters of silver or golden onion domes. There must be at least half-a-dozen other churches. There is the great bell tower of Ivan Veliki—Big John—soaring over them all.

And then there are the palaces: Again, half-a-dozen or so of them, all higgledy-piggledy, in a strange network of buildings. The oldest is what is left of the home of Ivan the Terrible—typical 16th-century Russian architecture: Low, vaulted rooms with painted walls and ceilings.

The newest of them is a huge

Each side of it is about half-a-mile long.

And it is inside this great wall that what we call the Kremlin stands. It is the strangest jumble of buildings. Tsar built something new, where he liked and as he liked, without the slightest regard for any sort of planning or unity.

WOODEN FORTRESS

It began life in the Middle Ages as a wooden fortress. The Princes of Moscow, as a defence against the Tartars, built themselves a great, wooden stockade on a piece of high ground by the River Moskva. Then, some time towards the end of the 15th century, the old wooden stockade was replaced by the high, brick walls, with saw-toothed battlements, broken here and there by great towers and gateways, which stand to this day.

But this great Kremlin wall runs right round a big triangle, one side of it along the river, building—the Great Palace, built in the middle of the 19th century. In it are the great state rooms, used for official receptions, and also the great hall, entirely modernized, looking rather like a gigantic concert hall, where the Supreme Soviet of the Soviet Union holds its meetings.

And even that is not the end; there are offices, and houses (where high Soviet officials now live), and barracks, and museums; it really is a most astonishing jumble.

QUEER CHARM

Is it beautiful? In detail and architecturally, frankly, no. And yet there is a queer charm about the whole. See it on a sunny, winter morning from across the river, when the snow has covered up a lot of the ugliness, and when the pale sunshine is lighting up the fantastic cluster of gold and silver domes, lifting up out of the river mist, or sometimes at sunset; there are moments when the Kremlin can be breathtakingly beautiful.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

THERE HAVE BEEN wide-spread and persistent reports that a secret meeting of the powerful Russian Cominform has been held in the Crimea where Prime Minister Stalin is said to have been vacationing.

The Cominform is the successor to the Comintern, the original general staff for world revolution, and it comprises the outstanding leaders of Bolshevism.

ANNEXATION NEXT?

Naturally there has been intense speculation over the significance of this reported mysterious conference, and London diplomats are debating the possibility that the conference revolved about these points, among others: (1) Russian annexation of one or more of the satellite states, and (2) a tightening of military co-operation in the Russian bloc in view of the tension arising from the Berlin deadlock.

To my mind these two points dovetail perfectly, and they seem logical enough. This isn't by any means the first time that the possibility of Russian annexation has been in the news, as this column has reported. Romania and Czechoslovakia have been named as possible victims.

But why these two countries in particular? Because their absolute possession would give Russia a military and political stranglehold on its entire satellite bloc, and it would vastly strengthen Russia's military position in the event of war with the western powers.

POWERFUL BASES

Czechoslovakia and Romania are adjoining states, and the Soviet frontiers touch both of them. However, Russia is separated from Bulgaria, Hungary and Yugoslavia by the Czechoslovakian-Romanian corridor. Possession of that corridor would put Russia into direct contact with all her slave-states and, even more important, with Austria and Germany.

The significance of that is clear to half an eye. Moscow could flood that corridor with military forces, thereby not only putting herself in position to handle any revolt among the satellites but acquiring a powerful base in the event of war with the west.

In this connection it shouldn't be overlooked that Czechoslovakia long has been one of the world's greatest arsenals, for the immense Skoda Engineering Works are situated there.

But, you ask, why can't Russia fill the satellites with troops without annexation? Well, she undoubtedly would in an emergency, but as things stand it would involve an open violation of "sovereignty" which would create a nasty international situation.

When we claim descent from the apes, it would seem a matter of ordinary courtesy to consult the apes first. After all, it is quite possible that they would prefer not to be thought our progenitors. Apes have never done us any damage and it is ungracious of us, but so very human, to claim relationship with these harmless creatures without even receiving permission to do so.

SENSIBLE MOVE

Financial Post

Permanent license plates for motor vehicles are being planned by the Manitoba Government. Like those in use in Great Britain and certain states of the U.S., these will have insert tags to designate the years.

Why this sensible move should be adopted so slowly in Canada is hard to understand. If there is any valid reason for the present cumbersome and costly system then it must rank among the world's best kept secrets.

HOME, SWEET HOME

Windsor Star

Paris has again become a mecca for tourists, with people flocking there from all parts of the world. But, there is a wealth of homespun philosophy in the remark of the proprietor of one of the city's most famous bars, "They all think Paris wonderful, but that there's no place like Kalamazoo."

Only a very small percentage of folk who go to New York, Paris or London would really want to live in such cities. They prefer to live contentedly in their own communities. For home is where one's friends, one's work and one's natural environment exist. Paris may be delightful, but home is home.

Compared With Kingfishers Canadians Small Fish Eaters

If every Canadian would eat as much fish in a year as a kingfisher does in two weeks, the problems of marketing Canada's harvests of the sea would be solved.

This is the opinion of Fisheries Minister R. W. Mayhew of Victoria who returned here Saturday from Ottawa for a short visit. Mr. Mayhew said that the Canadian consumption of fish is about three pounds per person per year—an amount equal roughly to that consumed in a week by a kingfisher. If Canadians would double their consumption of fish there would be no problem in marketing the products. Kingfishers eat their own weight in fish every day.

With the European market for canned salmon gone because of the dollar shortage, Canadians will have more canned salmon available this year. Mr. Mayhew does not, however, expect there will be much of a problem to dispose of the 1948 pack domestically.

In 1949, however, a larger pack is expected and considerable selling is expected to be necessary to dispose of the pack. The problem will be still more acute in 1950, the year of a four-year cycle when salmon runs are heaviest. Because of the loss of markets for canned herring, bulk of the 1948-49 herring catch is expected to go into reduction plants for the making of oil and meal.

Mr. Mayhew reported that catches of tuna this year were 2,000,000 pounds—double 1947 catches which were the biggest to date since the industry started in B.C. in 1939. He said more tuna would be canned in Canada this year.

The newly-re-established whaling industry on this coast, he reported, was doing very well and the quality of the output had been improved.

Britain's milk output of 122,000,000 gallons in July was 8,000,000 gallons above the record produced in July, 1947.

Truck Impounded After 3-Car Crash

Saanich police impounded a Chevrolet truck belonging to Harkam Singh, 3380 Oak Street, following a three-car collision at the intersection of Inverness Road and Cloverdale Avenue at 4:15 Sunday afternoon.

Singh's truck was struck by two cars, driven by Leonard H. Klatt and Ronald A. Klatt, brothers, both of 971 Cloverdale Avenue, who were proceeding east on Cloverdale.

No one was injured, but damage is estimated at about $800.

Spry 93-Year-Old Flies Atlantic To Live Here

James Oliver Higgins, 93, is given a hand by a T.C.A. steward as he steps from aircraft at Patricia Bay. Behind him is his son, Capt. Fred Higgins of Esquimalt.

Capt. Fred Higgins, retired army man of 1241 Juno Street, Esquimalt, flew to England a few weeks ago to see his 93-year-old father, James Oliver Higgins.

He was not happy about the trip. He would be seeing his father for the last time, he believed.

Instead of finding the elderly Higgins next to death's door, Capt. Higgins learned on arrival in England that his father was not at his home in Kent but was 'gallivanting at the seaside.'

So he decided then and there he would persuade his father to return to Victoria with him. It did not take much persuasion and the two arrived at Patricia Bay airport by T.C.A. aircraft Saturday, the father to reside with his son for the rest of his days.

"I certainly was surprised to find him so well," Capt. Higgins said, and the father grinned as he related details of his trip by air here.

SETS FLYING RECORD

It was the first time he had been up, and T.C.A. officials believe he is the oldest man to have flown the Atlantic by their aircraft or by any other company.

Mr. Higgins thinks flying is the only way to travel. "It certainly was a fine trip," he said. He was a little weary, though, he admitted.

There was a real Higgins family reunion in Montreal when father and son arrived there on the way here. They were met by Mrs. G. Furness of Ottawa,

Mr. Higgins' only daughter, and Harvey Higgins, assistant news editor on the Montreal Star, a second son.

Mr. Higgins was a building contractor. He has lived in Canada before and visited the Dominion in 1939. He helped build the tunnel that connects Ottawa's Chateau Laurier Hotel with the railroad station.

Auxiliaries Supply Hospital Equipment

The women's auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital was thanked at a hospital directors' meeting for its recent donation to the hospital of much-needed equipment. Appreciation of board members for the gifts was expressed by Dr. J. L. Murray Anderson, medical superintendent.

Dr. Anderson announced the auxiliary had purchased a new operation table for the operating room; had equipped a recovery room, where patients are kept following serious operations, and had equipped an emergency treatment room for persons suffering from suffocation caused by smoke or near drowning.

Dr. Anderson said he considered all the equipment donated by the auxiliary very necessary for efficiency.

The doctor also announced the children's aid auxiliary had offered to furnish a small interviewing room in the new children's ward, and had promised to install special lighting in the treatment room and to provide an electric fruit juice extractor for the kitchen.

"All these very kind donations are greatly appreciated," Dr. Anderson said.

Sask. Source Of Most Newcomers

Saskatchewan continues as the greatest contributor to British Columbia's population, although all the provinces of Canada but Prince Edward Island were the source of new B.C. families during September.

This was shown today in reports of family allowance payments released by W. R. Bone, regional director of the service.

The report showed that during September 520 families in receipt of family allowances arrived in B.C. from other provinces, while 370 left B.C.

From Saskatchewan came 144 new families. Seventy-eight B.C. families left for that province during the month.

Payments during September totaled $1,609,094. They were paid on behalf of 270,885 children.

Timber Production In B.C. Slips Again During July

British Columbia's vast forest industry, off to a record-making start at the first of the year, slipped behind its own record in July. Predictions now are that the cut of timber this year will be less than last.

On July 31, the last date for which official figures were available, the industry was running neck and neck with 1947 production. Conditions have been favorable for a record production this year—there has been no major closure of the forests because of fire hazard and there has been no major strike of woodworkers. Falling off of the cut is attributed to one factor—the currently gloomy market outlook for lumber abroad.

At the start of the year the industry was favored to beat its own 1947 record. But log scale for several months has shown a decrease over the corresponding month of last year.

This was the case in July when the log scale totaled 351,392,951 F.B.M. plus 437,900 cubic feet. This compared with 376,284,756 F.B.M. cut during July of last year. For the purpose of correlation the B.C. Forest Service considers one cubic foot equal to seven F.B.M.

The production for the first seven months of this year totaled 2,209,940,295 F.B.M. and 1,119,723 cubic feet, or computed entirely at F.B.M., 2,217,778,356 F.B.M. This compares with a cut of 2,212,067,424 F.B.M. for the same period of 1947.

GREATEST LOSS

The greatest loss during July was shown in the cut for the Vancouver forest district which includes all Vancouver Island and which is the largest timber-producing area of the province. During that month the cut was 255,525,292 F.B.M. and 437,900 cubic feet. This compares with 296,093,200 F.B.M. during July, 1947.

Partially offsetting this decrease were the three interior districts, each of which showed an increase in July of this year over the previous July.

The B.C. Forest Service also reported decreases in production of poles and fuel wood, although a substantial increase has been shown in the quantity of hewn ties produced during the first seven months of this year.

Here are the statistics for the seven-month period of this year, with the comparable 1947 figures following in brackets: Poles, in lineal feet, 13,572,170 (25,589,671); fuel wood, in cords, 61,349 (82,994), and hewn ties, 307,580 (280,104).

Royal Mail Lines To Resume Service

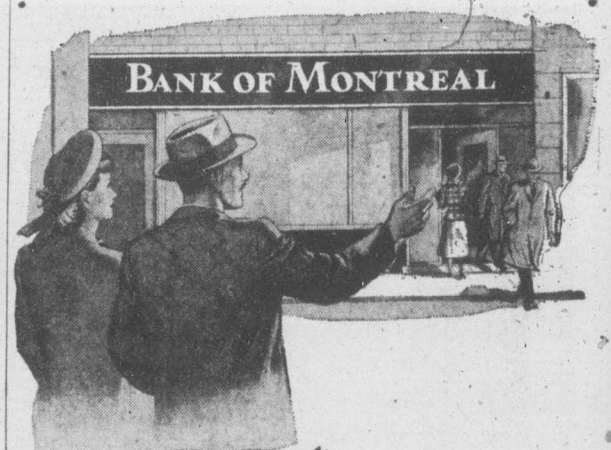

Announcement that Royal Mail Lines plan to resume its prewar service between this coast and London, Eng., was made here Friday by H. E. Bromfield, company manager.

Before the war, Mr. Bromfield noted, the company maintained a fortnightly service between the United Kingdom and the Pacific coast, carrying commercial cargoes and a limited number of passengers.

The firm operated the service with a fleet of four, 10,000-ton "Loch" ships.

"Our policy has been to call here directly from London," Mr. Bromfield said. "We will continue that policy and attempt to make our service as regular as it was in prewar days."

"This will only be possible, however, when labor troubles have been satisfactorily settled," Mr. Bromfield said. "We will continue that policy and attempt to make our service as regular as it was in prewar days."

Pictured above are: Front row, left to right, Miss Valery Converse, Mobile, Ala.; Mrs. J. V. Johnson, Victoria, and Mrs. H. H. Ramsdell, Washington, D.C. Back row, Mrs. J. B. Converse of Mobile, Mrs. Powell Grover, Mrs. George H. Davis, both of Kansas City, and Mrs. H. Cuthbert Holmes, Victoria.

At the Empress Hotel just as they were about to "go shopping," are Mrs. Frances Winton Champ, Logan, Utah; Mrs. W. S. Rosecrans, Los Angeles; Mrs. Fred Hawes, Victoria, and Mrs. Archie Booth, Washington, D.C. Sunday afternoon the visitors with their husbands were taken for a drive out the Saanich Peninsula, calling at Butchart's Gardens, where they were met by Mrs. R. P. Butchart and her daughter, Princess Chikmatoff, and continuing around the peninsula to "Spencerwood," where Mrs. Will Spencer was hostess at a late-afternoon reception.

Mrs. P. B. Scurrah, right, headed the women's reception committee. Pictured with her is Mrs. Walter Miles, left, wife of the president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. E. O. Shreve of New York, wife of the president of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Today's program included a visit to the Services College at Royal Roads and afternoon tea up the Malahat.—(Photos by Bill Halkett)

Mrs. D. Sharpe, 1285 Grant Street, was hostess at a miscellaneous shower to honor Miss Lois Russell, an October bride-elect. Gifts, presented in a container decorated in colors of the Shell Oil Company, in compliment to the groom-elect, Mr. Donald Charles Diamond, were presented by little Miss Caroline Cornish. Corsage bouquet of mauve chrysanthemums was presented to Miss Russell, while her mother, Mrs. G. W. Russell, and mother of the groom-elect, Mrs. G. Diamond, received violets and pink carnations in corsage. The tea table was covered with a lace cloth, and centred by a bouquet of sweet peas and asters, flanked by white tapers in silver holders. Assisting in serving were Mrs. G. Cooper and Misses E. Steer, H. Scafe and N. Martin. Others invited were Mesdames J. Logie, B. St. Pierre, R. Anker, A. Martin, A. Jordan Sr., A. Russell Jr., D. Scott, G. Russell Sr., T. Brooke, G. Brooke, E. B. McLean, I. MacDonald, S. Cornish, H. Curtis and Misses M. Russell, F. Russell, C. Cornish and R. Diamond.

Newlyweds Choose Up-Island Home

Following their wedding trip to Vancouver, Donald William Wakelyn, and his bride, Jane Thorburn Cunningham, will make their home at Port Alberni. Rev. F. Anderson heard the vows of the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Cunningham, 531 Niagara Street, and groom, son of Mrs. George J. Wakelyn, 1845 Kings Road, and the late George Wakelyn, Saturday evening at First United Church. Lustrous white satin created the gown, with full skirt slightly en train, and net yoke appliqued with embossed roses, outlined in seed pearls, worn by the bride. Her floor-length veil was held by clusters of orange blossoms on either side of her head, and she wore a necklace with matching earrings. Her shower bouquet was composed of Rapture roses and swainsona.

Pink jersey silk fashioned the gown for matron of honor Mrs. James Nott, sister of the bride. Miss Margaret Cunningham, her sister's bridesmaid, wore mauve taffeta. Both wore calots to match their gowns and carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Walter Wakelyn, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were John Symonds and James Waddell.

"O Perfect Love" was sung by Mrs. D. Pugh while the register was being signed.

Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Wakelyn assisted the couple to receive their guests at a reception at Loughheed's banquet club. The newlyweds cut their three-tier cake, which centred the table, set with carnations, roses and heather. Nick Russell, a family friend, gave the bride's toast.

Mrs. Wakelyn changed to a beige ballerina suit, with accessories in matching tone, wine topcoat, and corsage bouquet of gardenias and roses, for the wedding trip to the mainland.

Morning Wedding At Parsonage

The Parsonage at Metropolitan United Church was the scene of a charming morning ceremony Friday when Rev. A. E. Whitehouse united in marriage Miss Martha Hanowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hanowski of Killely, Sask., and Vincent Keith Patterson, son of Mrs. S. E. Patterson, 1985 Haultain Street, and the late W. Patterson.

The bride wore an attractive suit in wine gabardine, with accessories of black and smart black model hat. White gardenias fashioned her corsage bouquet.

Following the ceremony, luncheon was served at the home of the groom's mother. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, who will make their home in Victoria, left by motor for a honeymoon trip to California.

Engagements

Announcements to appear under this heading will be accepted at the Times Advertising Department. Minimum charge $1.00 for 10 lines and 15¢ for each additional line.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Callam, 1514 Amphion Street, wish to announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Maureen Agnes, to George Edwin, second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hibberson, 1513 Amphion Street. The wedding will take place quietly on Oct. 19, 1948.

Presentation of certificates to eight students, pictured above, all children of war veterans, awarded I.O.D.E. bursaries, was made by Mrs. Nancy Hodges, M.L.A., who spoke briefly.

Dr. J. M. Ewing, principal of Victoria College and Mrs. Ewing were honored guests at the tea and Dr. Ewing gave a short talk to the bursary winners. Principals of other schools and their wives were special guests.

Mrs. J. L. Ford, regent, municipal chapter, welcomed the

A short musical program was enjoyed, including songs by Rita Prince and Marguerite Mawer.

Petite Bride Gowned In Satin For Attractive Home Wedding

Friends and relations gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart, 1423 Fernwood

Road, Saturday evening, to witness the ceremony which united in marriage their daughter Jeanie May, to David Harold Cooke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cooke of Toronto, Ont.

The couple, who are motoring up-island on their honeymoon, will travel to Hamilton, Ont., to make their future home.

Tall standards of white chrysanthemums formed the setting as Mr. Stewart gave his daughter in marriage. Rev. Percy Willis performed the ceremony, and while the register was being signed, Miss Jeannie Willis sang

"Joy Comes At Last," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ted Hinde.

A rhinestone necklace, gift of her groom, was chosen by the petite bride, to enhance the beauty of her traditional satin gown. A full lace peplum enriched the flared skirt which ended in a long full train, and a matching frill of lace complemented the sweetheart neckline. Her fingertip veil of fine silk net was crowned with a beaded hiara and she carried pink roses and swainsons in her cascade bouquet.

Mrs. Clem Aitken attended her sister as matron of honor. With her pink taffeta gown made with full tiered skirt over crinoline, she wore pink lace mitts, and poke bonnet of matching taffeta and lace. Her bouquet was of orchid gladioli and pink carnations.

Angus Stewart, brother of the bride, was best man.

At the reception which followed, F. Bennett proposed the toast to the bride's future happiness.

When the newlyweds left on their honeymoon, Mrs. Cooke was wearing a navy blue gabardine coat styled with full swing back, and neckpiece of grey squirrel, over her pale pink crepe frock, with navy accessories and orchid en corsage.

Many Women Delegates Attend Convention

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative Party wants the support of its women members firmly behind the new leader it will select this week.

A total of 3,000 persons from across Canada will rally to the party's blue-and-white colors during the three-day sessions. And in line with a suggestion from Conservative headquarters that the three delegates from each riding be men, women and young people "as far as possible on an equal basis," between 300 and 400 women will be among the 1,311 delegates.

This is the largest number of women ever to attend a Conservative convention as representatives. Women will be represented on many committees. Nine are expected on a sub-committee for social security and they will also be on external affairs, labor, veterans and defence sub-committees.

Prominent among them will be Hilda Hesson of Winnipeg, chairman and director of the women's committee within the party.

It is expected she will be nominated as one of the two general vice-chairmen. If elected she would be called on to preside during at least one session of the convention.

Among other women delegates will be Senator Iva Campbell Falls of Peterborough, Ont., only woman appointed to the Senate by a Conservative government. Mrs. George Black, former Conservative member of Parliament for the Yukon, will be the woman "traveling farthest" to attend.

Colwood—Mrs. E. Evans will be the speaker at a meeting at Colwood school, Sept. 30, for the purpose of organizing a Parent-Teacher Association for Colwood.

Assaults On Vatican Influence Growing East Of Iron Curtain

VATICAN CITY (AP)—East of the Iron Curtain, the Roman Catholic Church today bears the brunt of an assault, currently most bitter in Hungary, mildest in Poland.

But, Vatican sources say, there is fear it will be extended and intensified in coming months.

Both the church and Communism, aware of the long-range aspect of the conflict, are directing mighty efforts towards youth.

Only an hour before Pope Pius this month addressed a vast throng of 300,000 girls of Catholic Action, adjuring them to constancy in their faith, he warned the German people of assaults against their religion.

Speaking to them by radio for the first time since the end of the war, he told them they may have "to fight to the last drop of blood" for the independence of the church.

Thursday, in the directive meeting of Italy's Communist Party, Luigi Longo, its reputed underground leader gave another index of coming battle.

"The essential task of the party today is to work among the masses. All the popular masses, to tear them from the reactionary influence of the Christian Democrats and the church."

The right to educate youth has become the crux of the conflict. In Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Romania Catholic schools have been nationalized.

There is fear at the Vatican, sources say, that this development will be extended gradually to other countries in the Soviet sphere of influence.

8 Premiers Among 89 Delegates To Parliamentary Conference

LONDON (Reuter)—Eight premiers are among 89 leading representatives of 37 parliaments from all the Dominions and colonies who will attend a 10-day Commonwealth parliamentary conference which will open here Oct. 18.

Most of the delegates have already arrived in Britain. They will leave next Monday on organized tours of western Europe, England, Scotland and Northern Ireland before their conference, which will be held under the auspices of the Empire Parliamentary Association.

At the conference, representative Commonwealth delegations will be chosen to go to Bermuda in November for a meeting of the British-U.S. parliamentary group, an affiliated body of the Empire Parliamentary Association, which links British parliamentarians with members of Congress.

Canada's delegation of 21 is the largest to the conference. There are 13 Dominion representatives, headed by Prime Minister King, who will leave the United Nations' General Assembly meeting in Paris to attend.

Other Canadian representatives are Premiers Byron Johnson of British Columbia, T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan, Angus Macdonald of Nova Scotia and Walter Jones of Prince Edward Island.

FROM AUSTRALIA

Australia's 15 delegates include the prime ministers of four states. New Zealand has five representatives.

There are 10 delegates from India, seven from South Africa, six from Pakistan and four from Ceylon. Eire will have four representatives and Northern Ireland one.

The association, recognized as the "centre of the parliamentary intercourse of the Empire" will sponsor a wide conference agenda, providing for open discussion of various economic and political problems, migration and Commonwealth parliamentary progress.

Stop Work On City Track Removal Soon

Removal of streetcar tracks from city pavements will be halted for the winter months in about two weeks' time.

Ald. J. D. Hunter, city public works committee chairman, said today the California firm of Fancher and Fancher will have completed its second contract by then.

About two-thirds of the rails in the city will have been uprooted. The remaining one-third will be taken up next spring. Ald. Hunter believes the work can be completed in about two months.

Tenders for the third and final contract have not been opened yet.

More work was done this year than was expected when plans were being made. The city originally intended to spread the track removal work over three years.

Close-down during the winter is brought about by unsettled weather. Contractors have been hampered because of the unusually wet summer in paving work in connection with the track removal.

Next year work will be started on rails on Government Street north from the post office.

Machine Invented As Heart Substitute

LONDON (AP)—A machine to substitute for the heart and render its bloodless for 30 minutes while it is opened up for surgery has been developed by a Swedish surgeon, the authoritative British at the week-end.

The invention of Dr. Clarence Crafoord, heart surgeon of Stockholm, is an apparatus which performs the circulatory duties of the heart. It short circuits the great artery, thus insulating the heart, and pumps oxygen into the blood stream to keep the brain alive during heart surgery.

Dr. Viking Olov Bjork describes the machine, which was evolved in Dr. Crafoord's clinic in Stockholm. In experiments the ma-

Chief Constables Hear Law On Habitual Criminals Farce

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada's police chiefs were returning to their home stations today after tabling a resolution urging wide changes in the country's habitual criminal legislation.

The current legislation "is a farce," Chief Duncan McDougall of Regina told the association's 43rd annual convention at the close of a four-day session Saturday.

"I don't think we can get a conviction under it," he said.

The association's resolution, left with the executive committee, said evidence now required to rid society of a repeating enemy was too expensive.

British Columbia Police Commissioner John Shirras said the duty of police officers was to enforce the law rather than seek its reform.

"Any defect in our law is the responsibility of the attorneys-general," he said.

A proposal to regulate the manufacture and sale of realistic toy pistols was also passed to the legislative committee for consideration. Chief Walter Mulligan of Vancouver said toy guns had been used in 22 holdups here in 1947.

Legislation governing lotteries and bookmaking came under fire.

"If you want to get that lottery act out of the Criminal Code," Regina Chief McDougall said, "it is up to us gentlemen to prosecute every infraction."

Chief A. E. Knight of London, Ont., said "we are an enforcement agency only. If changes are to be made they should come from the Bar Association and the public generally."

Chief Knight was elected association president to succeed Chief Charles Barnes of Montreal.

Chief Reg. Jennings, well-known Edmonton golfer, was chosen first vice-president, and Chief John Chisholm of Toronto, second vice-president. George Shea, director of Canadian National Railways at Montreal, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Sir W. Fisher Dies

LONDON (AP)—Sir Warren Fisher, whose signature on pound notes gave them the nickname "Fishers," died in London Saturday. He was 69. From 1919 to 1939 he was permanent secretary of the Treasury and official head of the civil service.

Stanley Bulley, an associate of the Royal College of Organists and a licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music, London, England, has been appointed assistant professor of music at Mary Washington College, the woman's division of the University of Virginia.

For 15 years he was organist and choirmaster of Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria, and for ten years was conductor of the Victoria Choral and Orchestra Union. He studied at the Royal Academy of Music, London, and the Royal School of Church Music, Canterbury, England. Mr. Bulley is a native of Plymouth.

Council Of Normal Elects Officers

Robert Walker Hampton, B.A., has been elected president of the Student's Council at the Victoria Normal School. The division representatives to the various societies will be elected on Monday. Fall activities at the Normal School are in full swing. The annual picnic held recently at Willows Beach was a great success. Teams have been chosen for competitive softball.

To Ask $100,000 Toward Hospital At Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI—Subscription of $75,000 from Port Alberni and $25,000 from Alberni toward construction of a new hospital, will be sought by West Coast General Hospital Board, following their September meeting.

Cost of a 100-bed hospital was estimated at $600,000, which could be financed through grants and a loan from the province of $300,000, a federal government grant of $100,000 a donation from the Community Chest of $100,000 and the remaining $100,000 by a municipal bond issue, the board reported.

Maintenance of nursing service during the shortage of nurses, owing to the help of married nurses in the district, was reported at the meeting.

Figures on the average length of stay in hospital in 1948 revealed patients are remaining a shorter length of time in hospital than formerly. In 1948 the average length of stay was 7.2 days compared with 8.79 days in 1947 and 9.89 days in 1945. Patients admitted to hospital this year totaled 2,105 compared with 2,051 for the corresponding period in 1947, but patient days were 15,451 compared with 17,430 in 1947.

"It is better to have a healthier population and a loss in operating the hospital than to have more sickness and have the hospital break even financially, which it would have done had there been as many patient days as in 1947," Harvey E. Taylor, secretary-treasurer told the meeting in giving the financial report. He stated that in August the hospital showed a loss of $686, total loss for 1948 standing at $7,179.

U.S. Vessel At Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI—Officers and men of the United States naval destroyer escort, R. F. Keller, and complement of naval cadets, were feted by Alberni Valley residents when the vessel bearing the name of a United States naval ensign who gave his life for his country in the Aleutians during the war, paid a visit here.

Lt. L. A. Bell, U.S.N.R., Lt. Russel Baker, and Lt. Cmdr. Robert Carboneau, officer in charge of the Everett Naval Training Centre, called on Mayor K. Jordan at the City Hall.

Officers considered the cruise to Port Alberni an ideal one for the trainees, who were able to witness seagoing conditions of a varying nature.

The Keller, designed for convoy duty to replace other types considered too slow, is smaller than a destroyer, but fast, and in the war did yeoman duty against the Japanese.

LANGFORD—Langford Community and Athletic Club will meet Thursday night at 8, in their hall on Island Highway, to discuss plans and activities for the fall season.

New Victoria Road Outlet Long-Term Project—Carson

Construction of a new highway entrance to Victoria for up-island and Saanich peninsula traffic is a long-term project which will not be undertaken in the immediate future, Works Minister E. C. Carson indicated today.

Friday he conferred with city officials with the aim of getting an understanding on the sharing of the cost of such a project. Mr. Carson feels that the provincial government would be willing to pay for the cost of actual highway construction if the city and municipal officials would provide the right-of-way.

Provincial works department experts feel that a highway capable of carrying two lines of cars each way, with parking strips and sidewalks on either side would be necessary.

City officials suggested that a boulevard section be put in the centre of the highway to make the highway attractive. Mr. Carson gave a discouraging reception to this suggestion.

A highway such as that planned for Victoria would carry heavy traffic into Victoria in the morning on week-days with very light traffic leaving the city. In the evening the traffic would be reversed, the majority of the cars leaving the city and only a small portion of the total traffic coming into the city. On a holiday the traffic density might be changed when the density of traffic changes.

TO MEET TRAFFIC FLOW

To meet this situation engineers now design multi-lane highways so that the majority of the lanes may be used for the heaviest traffic and the designations on the lanes may be changed when the density of traffic changes.

Thus on the proposed Victoria artery in the morning of a week-day three lanes might be designated for incoming traffic and one for outgoing cars. In the evening the two centres lanes would be designated for outgoing traffic.

Victoria is but one B.C. city which in the future faces a traffic bottleneck.

Provincial government engineers feel that the problem is bad now but not acute. But they feel that it may become acute in the near future.

Mr. Carson therefore would like to have a formula adopted on which not only Victoria but other cities could undertake joint construction of new highways into the cities.

Details of the routes surveyed for the new highways into Victoria are not going to be disclosed by the provincial government because it is felt that property on the proposed right-of-way might be purchased for speculative purposes.

MAIN ARTERY

It is indicated, however, that Douglas Street will be the main artery not only for up-island but also for Saanich peninsula traffic. At the present time the provincial government with federal aid is surveying to find a way to speed up traffic between Victoria and Patricia Bay.

The new Island Highway between Victoria and Langford must be to the east of the present road. The present highway could not be brought up to modern standards without the expenditure of huge sums.

It is thought likely that the new Island Highway route will be straight out Douglas Street to Burnside and along Burnside which could be projected in a comparatively straight route to Langford.

Engineers are investigating, along with other routes, a proposed highway out Douglas Street and then cutting across to Royal Oak. From Royal Oak the present East Saanich Road would be straightened and widened.

In emphasizing that these two projects are in the department's long-range rather than immediate future plans, Mr. Carson pointed out that it takes as long to survey and do engineering work for a highway as to complete the actual construction. This is the case if costs are to be kept at a minimum and the best highway is to result.

WORKS BACK-LOG

The provincial government's works department is also planning to build up a back-log of public works projects so that construction may be undertaken during possible future periods of economic recession.

Although there is nothing on paper to confirm it, it is believed that during such a period federal government aid may be forthcoming for certain types of public works projects. For some time Mr. Carson has been trying to get the federal government to indicate the possible extent of such aid so that the provincial government may prepare the developments.

Unless the surveying and engineering work is done now the projects could not be undertaken for a considerable time after the arrival of the period during which they were most needed, he feels.

Boy Burns To Death

PORT ANGELES (AP) — A seven-year-old boy, trapped by flames in an upstairs bedroom, was burned to death early Sunday in a fire that razed a suburban home. Two other children in the family were rescued as they groped their way down a smoke-filled stairway. The victim was Billy Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ross. The parents were away from home at the time of the fire.

Stunt Flier Killed

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Stunt flier Dick Powell, who cheated death for 33 years, lost his gamble Sunday as his wife and 5,000 spectators looked on.

The 46-year-old daredevil plunged to his death when he slipped from the wing of a biplane during an air show.

Powell previously had attempted one of his specialty stunts—transferring from one plane to another by means of a rope ladder at 500 feet altitude. He failed three times to make contact and then shouted to his pilot that he would "try something else."

He crawled out on a wing, hooked his feet in the guy wires and lowered his body so that he hung head down—another of his specialty acts. A few moments later the crowd saw him plummet to the ground.

Wallace Says Crisis Planned By Truman

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Henry Wallace said tonight the United States government is planning a new international crisis before the Nov. 21 election.

Wallace, seeking votes for the Presidency on the Progressive Party ticket, said State Secretary Marshall and John Foster Dulles, now in Paris, are taking actions "which can have as their ultimate purpose only the expulsion of the Soviet union from the United Nations."

"I charge," said Wallace, "that the course set by Marshall and Dulles, the course agreed on by Truman and Dewey, is working towards the downfall of the United Nations."

United Church Planning For Its 25th Birthday

VANCOUVER (CP)—Plans for observing the 25th birthday of the United Church of Canada engaged the 13th General Council today, in session here again, following a week-end visit to Victoria.

During two years of study the council's executive has evolved a series of special commitments it is asking the church to accept for the anniversary, among them a four-fold expression which urges acceptance of the Christian duty in the rebuilding of the nation and the world in the ways of righteousness and peace.

The executive's proposal will also ask the church to provide in Canada and Newfoundland during its anniversary year 125 ministerial recruits annually, 10 deaconesses, 15 community missionaries and nurses.

In its overseas activities the church will be asked to strengthen its staff with 10 recruits for mission work, five doctors, 10 educationists and five nurses for foreign service.

During the week-end two leading clergymen told packed services in the convention church, St. Andrews-Wesley United here, that Christendom is developing a solidarity which is moving towards greater Christian union throughout the world.

Very Rev. George C. Pidgeon, D.D., of Toronto, the United Church's first Moderator and now its senior churchman, said in reporting on the World Council of Churches which recently held sessions in Amsterdam, "Nothing the council said or did compares in importance with the fact that it met."

Oakland Lifts Coast League Baseball Title

For the first time in 21 years the Coast League baseball pennant will fly in Oakland.

Casey Stengel's free-swinging Oaks, forced to wait until the last day of the season, put on the clincher yesterday with a double win over Sacramento, 10 to 8 and 6 to 5, to maintain their two-game margin over San Francisco. The Seals, keeping the heat on right down to the final wire, took two from Seattle, 2 to 1 and 4 to 2.

A capacity crowd of 12,386 watched the Oakland club slug its way to its third pennant in P.C.L. history, and first since 1927 when the Acorns won under Ivan Howard. The other flag came in 1912 under Bayard (Bud) Sharpe.

San Francisco had to go 12 innings to win the opener on rookie Reno Cheso's pinch hit double, with Cliff Melton pitching the distance for his 16th win against 10 defeats. Another Seal rookie, Dick Lerner, was the winning chucker in the finale.

HURLS 19th WIN

Red Lynn of Los Angeles became the closest thing the league had to a 20-game winner by notching his 19th victory in relief over Portland, 7 to 5. Portland then came back for a 4 to 3 decision.

Albie Glossop and John Ostrowski homered to bring the Angels' season total to 178, the most any P.C.L. club has hit since 1930. It also broke the Angels' own previous high of 177 in 1929.

Hollywood edged San Diego for sixth place by taking a final pair from the Padres, 3 to 1 and 4 to 1. Frank Kelleher's homer with two on won the first game for Pinky Woods. It was the big right-hander's 15th win against 20 losses. Joe Krakauskas closed with a four-hit effort.

The Governor's Cup playoffs will start Wednesday with third-place Los Angeles at Oakland, and San Francisco at fourth-place Seattle.

McElroy Attracts Attention On Play In Canadian Open

VANCOUVER (CP) — Young Walt McElroy, Vancouver, who led all amateurs and all the Dominion's shotmakers in the Canadian Open, may be the golfer who will some day bring the title back to Canada.

That's the opinion of a top-notch United States pro, Fred Haas Jr., New Orleans. After watching the 21-year-old McElroy in the Open won Saturday by Charlie Congdon, Tacoma, Wash., he had this to say:

"He's a beautiful player . . . and he'll be the champ some day."

Haas was in the same threesome as Walt in the third round of the Open when McElroy banged out a two-under-par 70.

McElroy, who shot a 73 on the final round shaded Fred Wood, home pro at Shaughnessy Heights, by two strokes, for the laurels among the Canadians. Walt's 72-hole total was an even par 228.

ONE OF YOUNGEST
Playing his home course, McElroy was one of the youngest players in the tough Canadian Open tourney. Only Bill McWhinney, Vancouver, Canadian junior champion, and Bud Loftus, Edmonton, both 19, were younger.

McElroy also is the youngest Canadian to win the low amateur and low Canadian at the Open in the memory of Royal Canadian Golf Association officials.

"I don't think I'll ever turn pro . . . but I'll certainly be entered in the Open in Toronto next year," Walt said in an interview.

SEATTLE FISH DERBY

SEATTLE (AP) — Undaunted by rain, a record 1,174 fishermen competed Sunday in the 5th annual Seattle Times city salmon derby, with Elmer Verno's 25-pound king topping the 172-fish Puget Sound catch. New cars were won by five leaders, with two going to women. The catches totaled 1,856 pounds.

RETAIL GOLF BUTTON

Ken Lea and Eric Hiberson of Uplands Golf Club defeated Laurie Kerr and Harold Linham of Colwood, 5 and 3, in the button golf match at Uplands yesterday. Winners had a best ball of 57 against 62 for the losers for the 15 holes.

Sraith's Two Touchdown Passes Win For Calgary

The powerful Calgary Stampede retain their proud place atop the Western Canada Football Conference standings today, having vanquished Saskatchewan Roughriders by a single point—the final score being 13 to 12—in an exciting game as has been seen here this season.

Stampede's stunning finish Saturday was the more gratifying to home town supporters because the Riders, who unleashed an aerial attack earlier in the game, moved to a 12 to 2 lead in the first quarter.

Winnipeg's Blue Bombers held second place in the standings with six points. The lowly Riders trail with two points for a single victory.

More than 7,000 fans saw Stamp quarterback Keith Spaitz toss two-quarter touchdown passes to set up his team's victory.

Spaitz shared honors with

In college exhibition games, Toronto Beavers Indians of the O.R.F.U. tied University of Toronto 7 to 7 in the final seconds of play on a 115-yard touchdown sprint by Doug Pyzer. Queen's swamped McMaster 33 to 9; McGill blanked Ottawa 37 to 0 and Western defeated Ontario Agricultural College 35 to 3.

Cleveland Takes Over Lead In American Move Game Up In Red Hot Race; Boston Braves Win National Pennant

Boston Braves are "in" and Cleveland Indians are brushing their feet on the welcome mat spread for the American League's entry in the 1948 world baseball series.

Billy Southworth's Braves gained admittance to the world series yesterday when they clinched their first National League pennant since 1914.

The Indians moved a game in front of the runner-up Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees in the tension-jammed American League race.

Cleveland, behind the brilliant five-hit pitching of Bobby Feller, downed the Detroit Tigers 4 to 1 while the Yanks dumped the Red Sox 6 to 2 in the third game of their cut-throat series.

If the Indians win three of their remaining five games, the Sox or the Yankees would have to win all of their five to beat out Cleveland.

The Red Sox are in a better position to overhaul the Indians than the defending world champion Yankees who finish out on the road. Boston and Cleveland are at home for the rest of the season.

Feller was supreme. The big righthander, in bagging his sixth straight victory and 18th of the year, fanned nine and didn't walk a batter.

GORDON HITS HOMER

Joe Gordon gave Feller a working margin when he hammered Hal Newhouser for his 31st homer with a mate on in the third inning.

A capacity crowd of 69,755 fans watched the Yankees make it two out of three over the floundering Sox at the Yankee Stadium. Tommy Henrich sent the Yankees off to a good start when he socked his 25th homer with Phil Rizzuto on base in the first inning off Lefty Mel Parnell.

The Yankees sewed it up in the third with two more runs.

Meanwhile, Boston is toasting the Braves, particularly Bob Elliott, Vern Bickford and Neil Potter and of course Southworth. The Braves assured themselves inning homer off Larry Jansen. Bickford blanked the Giants until the eighth when he faltered and

Gordie Bell's Goal Gives United Victory

Gordie Bell's goal, 10 minutes from time, sent a large crowd of Victoria soccer followers home happy Saturday afternoon, as Roy Barnes' Victoria United opened the Coast League soccer schedule on the right foot by nudging the strong Vancouver City eleven, 1 to 0.

Although play was ragged on the part of both teams in spots, it is expected that the brand of soccer will improve greatly before the current season is very old. United had an edge in the play all through, but tough luck around the goalmouth hindered their scoring opportunities.

Majority of the young players on the local squad suffered from a definite lack of experience, but were good in places and stand to improve as the season progresses.

United opened with a strong attack in the first half, but missed three good scoring chances in the first 15 minutes of play. Goalies Joe Travis of the Barnesmen and Tom Johnson of visitors played bangup games, and were called upon to make numerous saves in the first session. Denny Huggins missed a grand opportunity after half an hour of play when he kicked weakly after a Vancouver defender miskicked directly in front of the goal.

Mainlanders missed one of the best scoring chances of the day at the 35-minute mark when Pete Proctor lifted a penalty shot high over the bar. With Travis out of the nets, fullback Joe Robbins punched a sure goal out of the nets, but the move paid off when Proctor dubbed the spot kick.

CLOSE SHAVE

Young Cedric Robb's shot went wide after he lost balance early in the second half after receiving a perfect setup, and a few minutes later, Andy Anderson, his substitute was outlucked when he attempted to head in Huggins' cross from the left wing. Bell missed the wide open net from close in, but at the 35-minute mark, made up for it by picking up the ball just at the edge of the penalty area and lifting a high drive that just sizzled under the bar. Teddy Crooks gave the fans some anxious moments when his drives came close, but goalie Travis was right on his toes to make the saves.

In addition to the fine play of Travis, Joe Robbins and Anderson were the pick of the United eleven.

Huskies Blanked By Minnesota; Irish Just Win

NEW YORK (CP)—An obscure guard and a star halfback grabbed the headlines Saturday as college football in the United States burst into the sports picture alongside the torrid baseball races.

The obscure guard is Steve Oracko of Notre Dame, whose 23-yard field goal gave the Irish a 28 to 27 victory over Purdue, Big Nine powerhouse.

The star halfback is Charlie (Choo Choo) Justice of North Carolina who passed for two touchdowns and scored two himself in the 34 to 7 whipping he and his teammates administered to Texas.

Alongside those two players in the headline department came such team accomplishments as Yale's 28 to 13 conquest of Brown; Michigan's tight squeeze before defeating Michigan State 13 to 7; Georgia Tech's 13 to 0 triumph over Vanderbilt; Indiana's easy time with Wisconsin 35 to 7; Tulane's upset of Alabama 21 to 14, and Texas A. & M.'s loss to Texas Tech 20 to 14.

On the intersectional front, Minnesota shook off its shackles for three touchdowns in the final quarter to down Washington 20 to 0; Southern Methodist convinced Pittsburgh 33 to 14, and California eased past Navy 21 to 7.

ARMY VICTOR

In the east Army again thwarted Villanova 28 to 0 for the 15th time in 16 games; Holy Cross tripped Georgetown 18 to 7; Columbia trounced Rutgers 27 to 6, and Cornell found New York University easy 47 to 6.

Arkansas romped over East Texas State 46 to 1, and Texas Christian grabbed three touchdowns in the second period to defeat Oklahoma A. & M. 21 to 14. While the Aggies stayed at home for their kicking, the University of Oklahoma traveled to California for a 20 to 17 defeat at the hands of Santa Clara.

That coast victory was offset by the 19 to 0 setback administered by Northwestern to the University of California at Los Angeles.

Cougars Score Grid Win Over Vancouver

Lou Mogul's Cougars opened their Canadian Football League schedule in fine style Saturday night under the lights at Athletic Park by whipping a game but under-manned Eagle-Time Athletic Club squad of Vancouver, 17 to 6.

The short-handed Vancouver team—stripping only 15 players to the Cougars 24—made things highly interesting for the locals during the first part of the game, but the strain began to tell in the closing minutes and Cougars closed out the contest with things mostly their own way.

Cougars opened the scoring in the first quarter after losing possession once when, in scoring territory, Freddy French, star of last week's game with Port Angeles, started the touchdown march with a 20-yard heave to Ray Mitchell. Bud French picked up 11 yards in two tries for another first down and then Bill O'Connell gathered in a long aerial from Freddy French for the major. Freddy French made the conversion.

LUCKY BREAK

Vancouver received a break on the resulting kickoff when they elected to kickoff instead of to receive. Toad Garnet, taking the kickoff at the goal line, fumbled momentarily. Then, in attempting to run the ball out from behind the posts, he was hit hard, fumbled and John Massey of Vancouver fell on the loose ball for a touchdown. Bill Surplis's try for point was low, leaving Cougars in a 6 to 5 lead.

In the second quarter Eagles threatened to take the lead when they drove to the Victoria four-yard line. With a third down coming up quarterback Surplis elected to try a forward pass. The ball hit the goal post with a receiver apparently in the clear and Victoria took over on the 10-yard marker.

On the first play, Freddy French stepped back and hit Mitchell with a perfect forward pass and the little scabback raced some 85 yards before he was brought down on the Vancouver 15-yard line.

Two plays later Fred French tossed another aerial to Mitchell for the score. French's drop-kick attempt hit the upright. Victoria kept its 11 to 5 lead intact until half time.

The Cougars added their final touchdown in the fourth quarter with Bud French providing the punch. After intercepting the ball on the 25-yard line French ripped off 20 yards on three plunges and then went through the middle for the touchdown. Brother Freddy added the extra point. Vancouver's lone point in the second half came when an attempted Cougar runback of a kick by Surplis was nailed over the goal line.

Next Saturday the Cougars will play an afternoon game at Athletic Park starting at 2.30.

Tips On Golf Rules

PLAYER'S PUTTER MOVES OPPONENT'S BALL

In a match, A's ball was one foot from the hole, B's ball was just over six inches farther from the hole. It was not a dead stymie but a shot that required care. B had a habit of following through with his putter and listening for his ball to rattle in the cup. The putter in following through touched A's ball and B said: "It's your hole, I moved your ball." "Not at all," replied A, your ball holed out at the same time or slightly before you moved my ball. You are conceding my putt by knocking my ball."

The first golf match of which there is any record was played by King James the Fourth of Scotland, who went out on "the third day of February 1504 to play at the Golfe with the Erie of Bothwell." —From an article on the history of golf by Robert H. K. Browning, in the British magazine "Golfing."

Rustling Charges Hinted In Eastern Puck Circles

TORONTO (CP)—Efforts of the Quebec Senior Hockey League to rustle Ontario Hockey Association senior players from under the noses of officials of Toronto Maple Leafs appeared today to depend on whether the wanted players signed "C" forms and whether the Leafs can make the forms stick.

A "C" form is an agreement to sign a contract. It contains all the terms of the contract which is to follow. A player is paid $100 for signing the form.

First indication that hockey rustlers were over the border came Wednesday when George (Punch) Imlach of Quebec Aces showed up in the vicinity of Pittsburgh's training camp at Welland, Ont. It was reported that he was bidding for the services of Dean McBride and Ray Hannigan, two of the Leafs' peagreens.

Imlach offered the two players $3,500, a job and a place to live if they would join his Quebecers. Leafs' manager Conn Smythe warned Imlach that he was dealing with players who had signed "C" forms and who must play where the Leafs sent them.

McBride said Thursday that he told Smythe that if he could not make the Leafs, he did not want to turn pro with Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, was quoted as saying in Montreal that if McBride has signed a "C" form, he will play hockey only where the Leafs let him play. He said that if a player-rustling war is brewing between the Q.S.H.L. and the Maple Leafs, he is interested from the angle of seeing that any agree-play but missed by inches on several scoring chances. Trevor Harvey was outstanding for the Leafs.

Juvenile Soccer

Juvenile soccer clubs are reminded that entries for the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer League will close Sept. 30 at the next general meeting of the association.

The meeting will take place at St. Louis College Thursday at 8. Entry forms may be obtained from James Lees, 2531 Blanshard Street, E 5711, or James Allan, 1048 Topaz Avenue, G 3708.

"Here's Something You Should Know About the 'Phone Situation ..."

"I learned a lot of things that should be interesting to B.C. folks on my recent trip south," this young lady reports.

"For example, here's something you should know about the 'phone situation. I used to think that this business of telephone shortages and waiting lists was peculiar to our part of the world, but I found that Americans have been having their troubles in this regard, too.

"I was told that the Bell Telephone System of the United States, the largest telephone system in the world, has one million, three hundred thousand people on its waiting list for telephone service.

"In other words, the difficulty of providing telephone service for everyone who wants it these days is continent-wide.

"It's good to know that our own telephone company is doing its best to improve the situation. The Company is now installing three times more 'phones than before the war—but there is still a waiting list of twenty-three thousand."

Goldstream Cited As Example Of Valuable Small Salmon Stream

Fisheries Minister Mayhew told Victorians today that Goldstream, near here, and hundreds of other salmon spawning streams and small rivers of the province, were decided revenue-producing attractions through the sport-fishing fraternity and tourist trade as well as being important economic factors in the commercial salmon fishing industry. "An important phase of the work of the federal Department of Fisheries in connection with the salmon fishery of British Columbia is the stream improvement program," he said. "Federal fishery inspectors are keenly aware of the necessity of keeping the hundreds of streams and small rivers under close watch, clearing obstructions and noting the need for fishways to facilitate the runs of salmon during spawning time."

The minister cited Goldstream as a typical example. SEEN BY THOUSANDS
"During the fall of the year when the salmon are ascending the stream for spawning purposes, the Goldstream river is the object of much interest by thousands of motorists who travel the highway daily," he said. "This stream throughout its length and also because of its natural picturesque setting, provides an unusually interesting and attractive show."
"While the flow of the stream was controlled to maintain an adequate water supply for Victoria's needs, officials of the water works have always been co-operative, and there has been no hesitation in releasing water

Community Chest Holds Successful 'Book Week'

A final agency assisted by the Greater Victoria Community Chest is the Esquimalt Friendly Help Association. Here is an organization that has been functioning for years, claiming, over these years, the "unselfish attention of helpful, public-spirited women such as Mrs. G. Sisman, president; Mrs. W. E. A. Barclay, secretary, and Mrs. A. A. Warder, treasurer."

The Esquimalt Friendly Help Association, whose last annual grant from the Community Chest amounted to $900.00, does not hand out money. It does, however, strive to assist needy cases for which there is no provision otherwise. It has provided groceries for families which, through disability or illness, have been unable to carry on; it has provided coal and wood for old people who have been on the verge of destitution and despair; it has furnished milk for undernourished children; it has assisted with blankets for invalids. It is not an indiscriminate handout agency but where investigation in cases brought to its attention reveals the need of a helping hand it seeks to extend such assistance. It is another of the Good Samaritans of life, not passing by, with head averted, "on the other side."

"We would have to discontinue if it were not for the Community Chest," we were told by the ladies who, wholly voluntarily over these many years, have been directing the activities of the Esquimalt Friendly Help Association.

"EVERY GIFT A HUMAN LIFT" is the fitting slogan of the Greater Victoria Community Chest campaign in October. The Esquimalt Friendly Help Association has extended hundreds of "human lifts" throughout its history.

Sacrifice Need In Civic Arena

"The arena was intended to be a memorial to sacrifice. It will be a memorial to inefficiency and greed unless redeemed by sacrifice," So writes A. O. Noakes, 1116 Broad Street, to Mayor Percy George and city aldermen, and he suggests: "The arena committee has given free service and high-priced consultants should now be willing to follow their example. Cash from those who can afford it, materials at cost, and one free day's work each Saturday would cut the cost and soon finish the job."

from the lake reservoir whenever needed by the salmon," he said. "An energetic and conscientious fishery guardians devotes his services almost entirely to assuring that the salmon interests receive adequate protection, not only in respect to the maintenance of sufficient water flow but also in preventing molestation of the spawning fish by the thousands of people attracted to the stream," he said.

Mr. Mayhew said that last year the chum salmon run on Goldstream aggregated between 10,000 and 20,000 spawners. The coho run was estimated between 1,000 and 2,000 fish, with a light run of steelheads.

"Records for previous years show that while as in the case of any stream there is variance from year to year in the numbers of each variety of salmon coming in for spawning purposes, maintenance of the runs are good," he said.

Veritas Library Holds Successful 'Book Week'
Attention must be given to good reading in order to combat the harm done by the vast number of salacious and ill-informed books and magazines printed and widely-circulated in recent times. Bishop J.M. Hill said as he officially opened "Book Week" at the Veritas Library, 222 Menzies Street.

He referred to the "splendid work" done by the Veritas Library and urged those present to make full use of the facilities available. He said the library was open every day from 11 in the morning until 9 at night with Mrs. N. McDonnell, librarian in charge.

Various parish groups throughout the city provided speakers for the sessions held every night during "Book Week." Brother P. Shea of St. Louis College discussed the library-exhibit of original manuscripts and photographs of living Catholic authors arranged by the Diocesan Council, C.W.L.

Mrs. J. J. O'Brien, representing the Perpetual Help Credit Union, related the background of the movement and outlined its aims. Other speakers included: Robert Holly, E. Lovick, J. D. O'Toole, Grand Knight of the Victoria Council Knights of Columbus, Father L. McLellan, James Pickford, Willard Ireland and Brother Walsh of St. Louis College.

Cyclist Hurt

Condition of 15-year-old William Kalyn, 1228 Juneau Street, injured in a car-bicycle accident at the corner of Blanshard and Yates Streets at 4:20 Sunday afternoon, was described as fairly good this morning.

The youth, who police said, was struck by a car driven by James D. Rogers, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by C. & C. ambulance suffering a concussion and bruised left eye.

Police report that Rogers was proceeding south on Blanshard and Kalyn was cycling west on Yates when the collision occurred.

Coffee Shop Robbed

Thieves who removed a rear panel of the Fairfield Coffee Shop, 311 Cook Street, during the night, escaped with $8 in silver, 11 cartons of cigarettes and five cartons of chocolate bars.

The theft was discovered at 4:15 this morning by Constables Norman Galbraith and H. Gillespy.

Resumes Post Here After Two Years' Work In Holland

... back from Netherlands

Clifford D. Reid, who has returned to Victoria from two years' duty as Canadian consul in the Netherlands, will resume his post here as inspector in charge of immigration next week.

Mr. Reid left here for London in August, 1946, to aid in handling of British applications for immigration to Canada, but in November of the same year was moved to the Netherlands to take charge of Canadian immigration arrangements there.

He has returned to Victoria with a strong admiration for the Dutch and their "industry, determination and stubborn application," which has seen them through the hard postwar years and resulted in complete removal of the rubble of war so that war scars today are scarcely apparent.

Mr. Reid also reports that, throughout the Netherlands, the reconstruction program is going ahead rapidly and efficiently.

GOOD IMMIGRANTS

The Dutch are fine people and are good immigrants for Canada to have, he says, and in spite of high specifications, there have been few rejections of applications on any but medical grounds. "The Canadian and Dutch governments are co-operating closely in working out the problem of immigrants," Mr. Reid said.

Mr. Reid also spent some time in England from where he returns to say, "I remain a great admirer of the self-discipline of the British people. I feel that they are less favored than many peoples, with their continuing scarcities and housing problems."

Mr. Reid made his return voyage to Victoria from Rotterdam in a five-week ocean trip aboard a Dutch vessel, aboard which was celebrated Juliana's ascension to the Netherlands throne. Noon edition—

Community Chest Officials Optimistic About Campaign

A spirit of enthusiasm prevailed in Community Chest headquarters today as organizers of the campaign set about making final plans for the opening of the drive a week from tomorrow. The optimism was attributed to the enthusiastic reaction of persons called upon to lend assistance.

Between phone calls to prospective volunteers, Mrs. A. H. Cox, chairman of the house-to-house canvass division, explained more persons had offered to help in the actual working of the campaign this year than ever before.

She said two women who absolutely refused to canvass in 1947 had been among the first to put their names down on the list to make residential calls this year.

More volunteers are urgently needed, however, if the campaign is to be conducted as it should, Mrs. Cox said. For efficient operation, 55 district captains and at least 1,000 canvassers are required.

APPEALS TO YOUNG PEOPLE

Mrs. Cox is especially appealing to younger people to assist in this work.

"So many of the ladies who have been enthusiastic workers over the many years since the Community Chest's inception are getting old and tired," she said. "The field is open to younger men and women to fill their places."

Dave Becker, genial secretary of the chest, also said early contacts were showing the public to be co-operative.

"The signs are more encouraging this year than ever," he said. "I am confident the objective will be reached."
He paid tribute to the campaign co-chairmen, F. E. Winslow and Walter Walker; the campaign organizer, George Randall, and the various division heads.

"They are putting more into this campaign than they would into their own businesses," he smiled. "With such direction, the campaign cannot fail."

Mr. Decker is one who not only believes wholeheartedly in the Community Chest idea, but actually lives it from day to day. A student of theology before the war, Mr. Decker left his studies to join the navy. He attained the rank of lieutenant commander.

ENTHUSIASTIC WORKER

Following demobilization, he entered Community Chest work on a full-time basis. He still intends to return to university to resume his study of theology, however.

"This, Community Chest work, I felt was the greater call," he said. "It is all things to all men and their are no denominational differences."

Miss Nan Dick, another full-time worker, feels likewise. Miss Dick's job is to keep on file a list of every person living in the Greater Victoria area for cross-checking donations.

The campaign this year has an objective of $180,000. Campaign directors are depending on every person in this area to make some contribution to assure success of the campaign.

Saanich Fire Department extinguished an automobile fire on the East Saanich Road, near Elk Lake, at 10:50 Sunday night.

The auto, belonging to C. Henry, was only slightly damaged.

Thieves Thwarted

Thieves were thwarted in two break-in attempts Saturday night in Fairfield and James Bay districts.

An attempt was made to gain entry to Smith's Grocery, 192 Menzies Street, by boring holes in a door panel with a brace and bit.

Windows on two doors were broken by a rock at Hawkes Bros.' Service Station, Fairfield Road and Moss Street, as thieves tried to open them from inside.

Adventure Film On Plaza Screen

What is believed to be the largest single set ever constructed on a sound stage is a contributing factor to one of the most effective illusions yet devised by movie technicians.

The huge set depicted, complete in every detail, even to terraced wheat fields, a village in northern India at the foot of the Himalayas, and was employed for interior shots in "Man-Eater of Kumaon," Jim Corbett's astonishing adventure showing today at the Plaza Theatre.

'Down To Earth' On Oak Bay Bill

Producer Don Hartman is known as "Senor" Hartman around Columbia Studio.

The reason for the title is Hartman's inclination towards the Spanish tradition of giving away anything he owns to the person who admires it.

Recently, Hartman walked on to the set of Columbia's Technicolor "Down to Earth," now playing at the Oak Bay Theatre, wearing a handsome pair of green and yellow Argyle socks. Larry Parks, who was sitting with Rita Hayworth, noticed Don's footgear and said he thought it was very nice.

Hartman sat down, removed his socks and presented them to Larry on the spot.

'Duel In The Sun' Now At Atlas

When Joseph Cotten climbed onto the quarter-deck of a horse for his role David O. Selznick's big Technicolor epic of Texas, "Duel in the Sun," coming to the Atlas Theatre today, it was for the first time in his life. Joe just doesn't like horses.

He didn't think much about actually riding horses until some friends asked him to go for a horseback ride. He consented and was about to get onto the horse, having his foot in the stirrup and his hand on the cantle, when the creature turned around, took a look at him and bit him in the elbow.

Joe's riding career stopped right there.

Musical In Color Presented At Royal

"Give My Regards to Broadway," the new Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor musical opening today at the Royal Theatre, brings to the screen the warm, nostalgic and lively story of a grand family of troupers who just wouldn't die when vaudeville did. Starring Dan Dailey, the unusual story with music features an outstanding supporting cast headed by Charles Winninger, Nancy Guild, Charlie Ruggles and Fay Bainter.

Provocative Story Featured At York

Heralded as one of the hardest hitting as well as most important films to ever reach the screen, Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "Gentleman's Agreement," Laura Z. Hobson's widely-discussed best-selling sensation, opens today at the York Theatre.

The script for the Twentieth Century-Fox film, which stars Gregory Peck, Dorothy McGuire and John Garfield, was written by Moss Hart, who is said to have captured the full spirit of Miss Hobson's provocative story, scene for scene, impact for impact, with no punches held back.

DOMINION THEATRE

Don't let the sinister impression achieved by Hurd Hatfield on the screen fool you. The handsome, six-foot actor is a friendly and cordial fellow whose popularity with many Hollywood glamor girls has won him the Number One place as their favorite escort.

Things mysterious and supernatural have always interested the talented actor who, in "The Checkered Coat," the Twentieth Century-Fox release now at the Dominion Theatre portrays a sinister neurotic driven to destruction by his twisted mind.

ODEON THEATRE

Three all-time hit songs will be heard in "Feudin', Fussin' and A-Fightin'." Universal - International comedy starring Donald O'Connor, Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride with Penny Edwards. The zestful new picture, based on D. D. Beauchamp's Collier's magazine story, is now at the Odeon Theatre.

The celebrated Sportsmen Quartette sings the title number and O'Connor sings "Me and My Shadow" and "Sposin'" being joined in the latter by Miss Edwards.
